GOVERNOR ORDERS
CALIFORNIA BANKS
TO CLOSE 3 DAYS

Step Taken Pending Passage of Legislation—Louisiana and Oklahoma Also Act.

500 of Ohio's 800 Banks Limiting Withdrawals—New York Call Loan Rate Up to 2 Per Cent.

Twelve states within the last few days have declared bank holidays of three days or more to assist banks to withstand heavy withdrawals. These are California, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Michigan, Maryland, Nevada, Oregon, Arizona. In six other states restrictions on withdrawals are in effect in some of the banks. These are Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Arkansas, West Virginia, New Jersey. The District of Columbia has joined this second group.

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—A proclamation mandatorily closing banks and financial institutions throughout California for a period of three days was issued by Gov. James Rolph Jr. here last night following a conference with the State Banking Commissioner and leading state bankers.

The proclamation said: "Whereas, a financial unrest exists throughout the United States the adverse effects of which has been reflected in the State of California with the consequent unnecessary withdrawal of funds from banking institutions in this state, and it is deemed in the public interest and for the preservation of the public welfare, peace, health and safety and for the protection of depositors whose interest it is essential to safeguard that a period of public holidays be proclaimed until the legislation necessary thereto may be enacted, which, in my judgment, will not require a period longer than that hereinafter specified."

The proclamation today tomorrow and Saturday public holidays. California has some of the largest branch banking systems in the country. Deposits of nearly $3,000,000,000 were tied up in the state and national banks by the proclamation. The San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock and Curb Exchanges did not open and officers said they probably would remain closed for the duration of the holiday. Stock brokerage houses remained open, however, for transactions on the New York and other exchanges, but accepted no buying orders save where the customer had cash or sufficient credit.

By the Associated Press. COLUMBUS, O., March 2.—With more than 800 of the State's 800 banks limiting the withdrawal of deposits, bankers pondered the advisability of resorting to the issuance of clearing house certificates or some type of bank scrip.

Meanwhile, some banks reported difficulty in finding space in their vaults for the huge stacks of United States currency of small denomination that had been deposited under the rule requiring them to segregate all cash received from the closing of new accounts.

The general situation, said State Director of Commerce Tammam, has "ceased off" to such an extent that some bankers felt they soon might be justified in raising the restriction on withdrawals most of them have fixed at five per cent.

Three-Day Bank Holiday Is Called in Oklahoma. OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., March 2.—A compulsory three-day bank holiday in Oklahoma was proclaimed last night by Gov. William Murray.

The order, affecting all banks within the State, was issued after the Governor had conferred with W. J. Barnett, State Bank Commissioner, and leading financiers, in order to enable the Legislature to enact a bank moratorium law to relieve financial conditions.

NO BANK HOLIDAY CONTEMPLATED FOR MISSOURI, SAYS PARK

JEFFERSON CITY, March 2. GOV. GUY B. PARK said today that he believed Missouri's bank holiday was in a more favorable position than they had been for some time and that no banking moratorium was contemplated. He was considerably perturbed by a renewal of reports that Missouri had or was considering a banking moratorium. The latest reports to that effect, he said, resulted from a proclamation by Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma in declaring a three-day moratorium for Oklahoma. Gov. Murray erroneously stated in the proclamation, Gov. Park said, that Missouri was among the states in which moratoriums had been declared.

O. H. Moberly, State Finance Commissioner, said today: "I wish to contradict flatly any report that Missouri officials have declared a banking holiday or are contemplating such action. There has been no demand for a moratorium, and I can see no possible action for one."

BUS KILLS WOMAN
FLEEING FROM DOG

Mrs. Dolly Riddell, 60, Struck Backing Into Street to Escape Animal.

Struck by a small dog that ran barking out of a driveway near Jefferson avenue and Washington boulevard at 6:30 a. m. today, Mrs. Dolly Riddell, 60 years old, backed into the street and was killed by an eastbound Delmar bus.

Mrs. Riddell, who roomed with her husband, Charles, at 2802 Washington boulevard, was walking to work when the dog, a small black and white, started barking and she attempted to fight it off with papers she had in her hand.

She was hit by the side of the bus and her head crushed under its wheel. The dog followed her into the street as she was hit, then scurried away down Washington, according to witnesses. Persons living at the house with Mrs. Riddell were usually afraid of traffic accidents and had often warned them to be careful. Her husband is an unemployed paper hanger.

The bus driver, George Young, 6216 Clemens avenue, and the conductor, Edward Kommer, 5874 Enright avenue, gave bond to appear at the inquest. They said they were unaware of the woman being hit until they felt a jolt and were halted by a witness on the sidewalk.

Clasping Prayerbook, Henri J. Duernberg, Florist's Designer, Makes Suicide Plunge.

FOUND ALIVE, DIES
TWO HOURS LATER

Indications Are He Jumped From 16th Floor; Trolley Wire Breaks Fall—Had Suffered Breakdown.

Clutching a prayer book in his hand, Henri J. Duernberg, designer for the Grimm & Goffy Floral Co., jumped from an upper floor of Hotel Statler at 12:35 p. m. today, and died two hours later.

He struck a trolley wire and landed on the roof of a sight-seeing bus parked on the Ninth street side of the hotel, near St. Charles street. At City Hospital physicians diagnosed his injuries as fractures of the spine and left arm.

From witnesses and guests in rooms on the lower floors of the 17-story hotel it was determined that Duernberg jumped from a window above the seventh floor, but the exact point has not been determined.

A waiter reported seeing Duernberg, who was known at the hotel, on the sixteenth floor at 12:15 o'clock. A luncheon of the Rotary Club was in progress on that floor at the time. Duernberg could have reached a window shielded from the view of diners by coat racks. There was nothing to indicate, however, that he jumped from that point. No windows were found open in unoccupied rooms on the west side of the building.

Duernberg, with Grimm & Goffy for 20 years, had been suffering a breakdown three months ago and had been back at work about a week. He left the florist shop at 712 Washington avenue at 12 o'clock, saying he was going to his bank. Associates, who had worried because of his condition, sent a porter to look for him a short time later. Apparently he did not go to the bank, as he had less than $2 in his pockets when his clothing was examined at the hospital.

Vincent Gory, president of the floral company, was attending the Rotary Club luncheon at the Statler when Duernberg jumped. He said later he had not seen his employee at the hotel.

The trolley wire broke Duernberg's fall and he crashed only partly through the roof of the bus. Elmer Sobelman, a taxi driver, who witnessed the leap, placed the injured man in his cab and rushed him to the hospital.

Duernberg, 46 years old, resided at 6287 Clemens avenue with his wife.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Shock and surprise was the reaction of the capital today at word of the death of Senator Walsh of Montana in the midst of preparations for a brilliant inaugural ceremony to be held in the White House.

The Senate immediately adopted resolutions of regret and adjourned out of respect to Mr. Walsh. A 10 o'clock meeting had been called to discuss the death of the Senator.

Inaugural plans, however, had gone too far for any change to be effected, and Rear Admiral Cary T. George, chairman of the committee, said there would be no amendments except as ordered by President-elect Roosevelt.

The House adjourned at 12:30 p. m., as a mark of respect to the late Senator.

Numerous Senators and other Washington officials gave immediate expression to their grief and condolence.

Aides to President Hoover said he expressed "shock and surprise" at the news and immediately dispatched to Mr. Walsh a message of condolence.

In the discussion that arose immediately of whom might be selected to fill the post in the Roosevelt Cabinet, which the death left open, the name of Arthur Mullan of Nebraska was outstanding.

Robinson Makes Announcement. Speaking slowly, with deep sorrow, Democratic Leader Robinson of Arkansas made the Senate announcement of the Senator's death.

"Mr. President," Robinson began, presenting his resolution that the Senate adjourn as a tribute to Senator Walsh's funeral.

Death Early Today, in North Carolina, Ascribed to Heart Attack; Body in Wedding Suit, Is Sent to Washington.

WIDOW DESCRIBES HIS LAST ILLNESS

Senator, Who Was Married in Havana Last Saturday, Was Returning to Become Roosevelt's Attorney-General.

By the Associated Press. ROCKY MOUNT, N. C., March 2.—Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana died suddenly of a heart attack at 7:10 a. m. today aboard an Atlantic Coast Line train near Wilson, 18 miles from here, while en route to Washington with his bride whom he married Saturday in Havana.

The Senator, who was named to be Attorney-General in the Cabinet of President-elect Roosevelt only a few days ago, was 73 years old.

The body was brought to Rocky Mount and prepared for burial in the same clothes in which he was married in Havana to Senora Nives Peres Chaumont de Truffin. It was placed on an Atlantic Coast train which left for Washington at 2 p. m. It will arrive in the capital tonight.

Burial will be in the family plot in Helena, Mont., beside the first Mrs. Walsh, but definite plans for funeral services will be made at Washington.

Widow in Nervous State. Capt. Charles Guder, U. S. N., son-in-law of Senator Walsh, announced plans after conferring with Mrs. Walsh, who departed for Washington on the train carrying her husband's body. Mrs. Walsh collapsed as she took her seat on the train, but was soon revived. She was accompanied by Dr. W. B. Kilmer of Park View Hospital, Rocky Mount, and Capt. Guder, who flew here from Hampton Roads, Va. Edward A. Conroy of the Department of Justice, who flew here from Washington earlier today, also accompanied Mrs. Walsh. Mrs. Walsh's Cuban maid completed the party.

Father Dignified. Father Dignified, Catholic priest of Wilson, performed church rites as the casket was placed on the train.

Mrs. Walsh signed permission for an autopsy, but E. C. Martin, Coroner of Wilson County, attached a note to the legal permission saying he did not believe an autopsy "necessary." This, however, left the way open for an autopsy should one be asked for later.

Mrs. Walsh was placed under the care of two physicians when she complained of pains near her heart that were spreading down to her left arm. The physicians said the symptoms were those of angina pectoris and that Mrs. Walsh thought she had suffered from similar pains before. They said there was no cause for alarm at her condition and attributed it to the severe strain of the Senator's death.

Sound Doctor on Train. The gray-haired Montanan got up from his berth some time during the early morning and collapsed on the floor. Mrs. Walsh, awakened by sunlight shining through a window with the train was traveling between Contoocum and Wilson, a distance of six miles, found her husband's berth empty. "Alarmed and handicapped by her inability to speak fluent English, Mrs. Walsh summoned her Cuban maid, who occupied a berth in the same car. The maid sent a Negro porter racing the length of seven cars to tell Herbert Weatherman, conductor of the train.

The conductor told the Senator's weakening pulse and sent for a physician, Dr. Richard J. Costello of Cambridge, Mass., who was traveling on the train, but before the

He is on a very high plane. That would have been felt all through the country. I had known Senator Walsh for many years, and considered him the most honest and courageous man of high character who has appeared in public life in this country."

E. M. House, confidential adviser to the late President Wilson: "He was one of the finest men I ever knew. His death is a great loss to the nation and to the new administration."

Oswald Garrison Villard, contributing editor of the Nation: "The United States has lost one of the best, one of the ablest and most devoted public servants. His record in the Senate has been one of the very best in recent years."

Claude G. Bowers, who delivered the keynote speech at the Democratic convention of 1928: "Senator Walsh has an established place in history as one of the greatest reformers and one of the best minds we have had in public life. We think of him primarily as a man of extraordinary intellectual power, an intellectual machine, but underneath he was one of the most humane and human men I have ever known."

George H. Dern, Secretary of War in the Roosevelt Cabinet: "Senator Walsh was one of the great men of the country. He would have been a strong man in the Cabinet. His death is a great loss to the administration."

Reardon Guy Taggart, professor of economics at Columbia University, and an economic adviser to Roosevelt: "Senator Walsh was a courageous man and an able statesman. It is tragic that at a time when many of the things he had worked for seemed immediately in prospect he should be taken away. It was the ambition of many of us to serve under his leadership. We believed in his ideals. It will be difficult to go on without him."

Prof. Raymond Moley of Columbia University, war debts adviser to Roosevelt: "We have lost at once the dean of the Democratic party, one of the most potent and effective exponents of public honesty of all times, and a great American liberal. This loss is irreparable."

MAYOR CERMAK CONTINUES GAINS; HAS GOOD NIGHT

Placed in Oxygen Room So He Can Breathe More Easily — Pneumonia Is Virtually Gone.

HICCUGHS START; ARE NOT SERIOUS

Doctors Announce Bullet Has Been Encased With Body Tissue and Will Not Be Removed.

MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—The following bulletin on the condition of Mayor Anton Cermak was issued by his physicians at 3:06 p. m. today:

"Mayor Cermak had a blood transfusion and fell asleep during his administration. No opiates were previously given. For an hour following the transfusion he continued to sleep. There was great improvement shown in the quality of his pulse and facial color. Hiccoughs not present. Pulse 114, respiration 28."

A bulletin at 10:30 a. m. said: "Mayor Cermak is resting more quietly. He has been sleeping since early morning except at intervals when taking nourishment. His coughs and abdominal stress seem to have subsided. Pulse 120, respiration 30, temperature not taken."

Dr. Frank Jirka, Mayor Cermak's son-in-law, who read the bulletin, described the abdominal stress as peritoneal irritation, but declared it was not peritonitis.

Doctors attending Mayor Cermak said in a 4:30 p. m. bulletin today: "Mayor Cermak awoke at 4 p. m. He was given some line water and broth. Pulse 120, respiration 24. Temperature not taken."

The peritoneal irritation was caused by absorption of disinfectant blood from Mayor Cermak's chest and liver. The bullet that Giuseppe Zangara fired into Cermak two weeks ago is in the interior surface of the liver, also the lower lobe of the right lung. The blood transfusion, the second given, was made early this afternoon. A pint of blood, given by Virgil Wright, utilities company employee, was pumped into Cermak's veins.

Last week a pint of blood from the veins of Dr. R. Sam Moseley, of the Jackson Memorial Hospital staff, was pumped into Cermak's veins.

Dr. Frederick Tice, Chicago heart specialist, said the transfusion, which was given as Cermak slept, was decided on "just as a matter of giving him that much more strength."

An additional glucose injection was ordered for later today.

Dr. Jirka, at 7:40 a. m. issued the following bulletin:

"Mayor Cermak spent a very comfortable night in the oxygen room. His respiratory excursions improved. He has had considerable hiccoughs. Pulse 115, respiration 30, temperature not taken."

Dr. Jirka said the hiccoughs were due to peritoneal irritation but were not considered serious. During the night the Mayor's respiration rate dropped to 28, the lowest it has been in several days.

The Mayor is in a specially constructed oxygen room, which was brought here by airplane yesterday. An X-ray examination of Mayor Cermak's chest last night showed the pneumonia congestion virtually cleared from the right lung.

The bullet remains lodged in Cermak's eleventh rib almost at its juncture with the spine. Removal would endanger Mayor Cermak's life, the doctors decided. Body tissues have encased it. It will always remain in its present location.

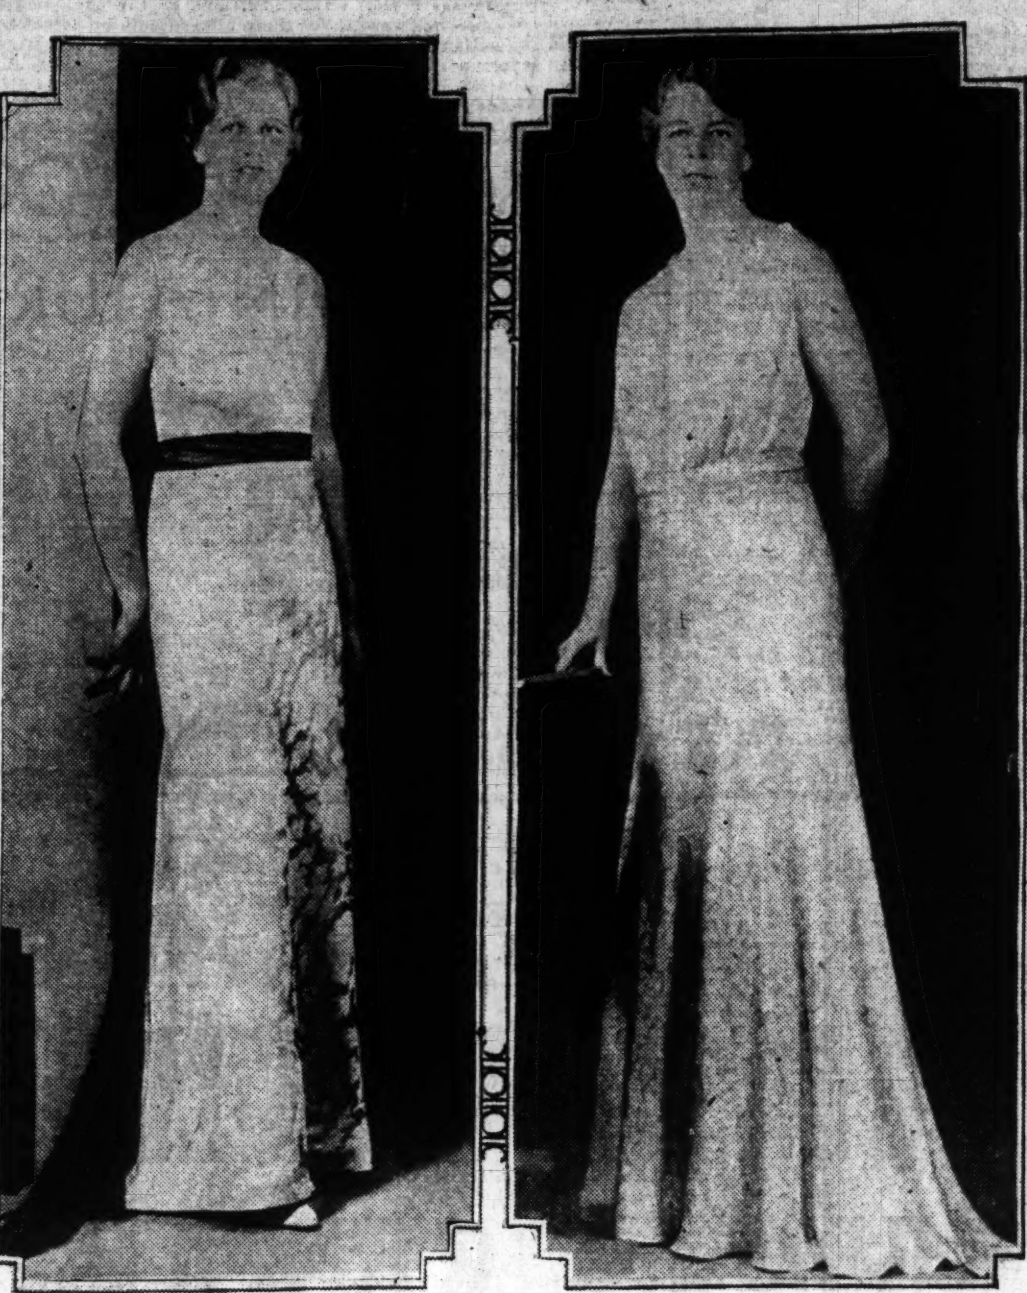

Margaret Krul of Newark, N. J., one of five persons shot in the attempted assassination of President-elect Roosevelt, was discharged from Jackson Memorial Hospital today. She was wounded in the back of her head. Russell Caldwell and William J. Sinner, two others who were wounded, left the hospital previously.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 2.—Three members of the Minnesota Legislature and Gov. Floyd B. Olson received threatening letters today. The letters, which are unsigned, were turned over to postal officials.

Representatives H. H. Barker, E. J. Chigren and Joseph Koslak, found identical letters in their morning mail. They were charged with opposing automobile license taxation. The letter said in part: "We are sick and tired of having to pay so high a tax on everything and you put there to reduce them. If there was a 50 per cent reduction on all cars, 'Big game' tyrants for yours." Gov. Olson was reported to have received a more threatening letter. He refused to comment on it.

The gown is made from antique Chinese satin brocade that Mrs. Roosevelt's aunt brought back from China over fifty years ago. It is slipshod length, with the high empire waist and the low "V" decollete outlined in red and white crystal jewel embroidery across her shoulders. She wears a scarf of two-toned red chiffon, which also forms the sash that trails in a slight train. On the right is MRS. ROOSEVELT in a "transformation" costume, having detachable sleeves and a neckline which may be worn high or low, thus being appropriate for either formal afternoon or evening affairs. The Return Trip.
"My captors told me little. I judge it was about midnight Tuesday that the men put me in the car again and began to drive."

"We drove all that night and all day Wednesday up to about 7 p. m."

"On the return trip we stopped for gasoline three times, the same as we had on the original trip, and I was forced to lie in the bottom of the car each time."

"Some place along the way we stopped and I got the impression that another man joined us. That's what makes me think there were three."

"Finally the men said they were going to let me out. They said that after I had been let out I should count to 150. Then go around the corner and you will find a drug store," they said. "Be sure to telephone your folks as they are worried about you."

"They untied my wrists, put me out and drove away. I counted—I don't know how far, took the bandage off my eyes and went to the drug store. I telephoned my father and he sent a friend to get me."

"Sixteen day—it seems more like 16 years."

"Thank God, it's over now."

Only Beginning, Says Father.
With his son safe, the elder Boettcher talked guardedly of the case.

"This is the beginning, not the end," he declared. "I might say that this is the end of one story and the beginning of another. What the outcome of the second story will be remains to be seen."

After questioning, young Boettcher was taken home where his wife, Mrs. Anna Low Boettcher, an expectant mother, was waiting for him. They had one child, Anna Lou, 5. After a time he went to bed.

The elder Boettcher grew excited during the arrangements following his son's release. He drew a revolver and threatened police and reporters congregated in front of his home when he returned from a reunion with his son.

"Get back or I'll shoot," he cried. Patrolman Ralph Fairley drew his pistol, the others scattered. A friend disarmed Boettcher and he later apologized.

The release of young Boettcher ended one of the greatest searches ever conducted in Denver and vicinity.

CROWDED SOCIAL CARD FOR MRS. ROOSEVELT

Inaugural Activities Start Tomorrow and Continue Till Saturday Night.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—For Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt the social activities incident to the inauguration of her husband start at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and between that hour and midnight she will attend two receptions, call with her husband at the White House, receive President and Mrs. Hoover at the Mayflower, attend a formal dinner and a concert, make a speech, and finish the evening at a formal reception.

Her program the following day will begin with a church service at 10:15 a. m. and end after midnight at the inaugural ball. During the afternoon and early evening she will be hostess at the White House to more than 2500 guests. The invitation list for tea, started at 10:30, has grown to more than 2000.

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt will arrive in Washington this evening.

At 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon Mrs. Roosevelt will attend a reception at the National Women's Democratic Club. An hour later she will be present at another reception of the Congressional Women's Club.

Following that she and her husband will call at the White House. Then, according to custom they will return to their hotel, and President and Mrs. Hoover will pay them a call.

Mrs. Roosevelt's evening engagements start off with a dinner to be given the electors, to whom she will take a message from her husband. She will then attend a concert for the unemployed and after that will make her final radio speech.

Then comes the final event of the day, a reception in the Pan-American Building for Governors.

The inauguration day program begins with a service in St. John's Episcopal Church, following which the Roosevelts will go to the White House to ride to the Capitol with President and Mrs. Hoover. They will return to the White House after the inauguration and will entertain 500 guests at a buffet luncheon before going out to watch the parade pass the White House.

From 5 until 7 Mrs. Roosevelt will then be hostess to the more than 2000 guests at tea. From 8 until 10:30 her guests will be 72 relatives, invited for a buffet supper.

"After that I'll go to the inaugural ball," she concluded, "and then I don't think I'll have another thing to do until church time Sunday morning."

UNEMPLOYED ARMY CRIES OUT AGAINST PINCHOT'S PLAN
Governor Tells Crowd He Is Going Ahead With Relief Program

"Whether You Like It or Not," By the Associated Press.
HARRISBURG, Pa., March 2.—From the grand stand case in the rotunda of the Capitol, Gov. Pinchot today addressed the "army of unemployed."

The "army," which yesterday demanded a $100,000,000 dole from the General Assembly, was supplemented by hundreds of other spectators. Police estimated the crowd at 2000.

"I am going ahead, whether you like it or not, to do the best I can for the unemployed of Pennsylvania," said the Governor. "Good-by and good luck."

Edward Bender, leader of the marchers, replied to the Governor, who returned to his office: "That 'best' best the Governor promises to do will be the starvation community market plan. Are we going to accept it?" The marchers chorused a loud "no."

COLLECTOR SHOT BY ROBBER BUT SAVES HIS MONEY

Frank H. Mueller Jr. Held Up by Pair Back of Home — Throws $300 in Pouch Into His Yard.

Frank H. Mueller Jr., 30 years old, a collector for the Hartwig-Dischinger Realty Co., was shot in the left arm by one of two robbers who held him up in the alley back of his home, 1709 Cora avenue, at noon today.

Mueller threw a pouch containing more than $300 over a board fence into his yard and picked it up after the robbers had fled.

"I had just driven home for lunch and had parked my car in the alley close up against the fence," he said. "As I turned aside, after taking my key out of the car door, I saw two young men beside me."

"One, who was dark-complexioned, had a revolver and told me, 'Put up your hands and give me that money!' I said, 'Go to hell!' at the same time throwing the pouch over the fence and making a lunge at him."

"About that time he fired — twice, I think. Both robbers ran away. With my left arm dragging, I went inside the yard and got the pouch. A neighbor came running out and I told him to call police."

Mueller was treated at a physician's office and taken to DePaul Hospital for removal of the bullet, which injured the bone in his left elbow.

W. K. BIXBY ESTATE APPRAISED
$798,464; WIFE'S $906,946

State Inheritance Tax on Former Placed at $16,567 and Latter $23,333.

Appraisals filed today in Probate Court fixed the value of the estate of W. K. Bixby at $798,464 and that of his wife at $906,946. The State inheritance tax on his estate is placed at $16,567 and on Mrs. Bixby's at $23,333.

Mr. Bixby, retired capitalist, died Oct. 29, 1931, about two months after the death of his wife. Both estates were left chiefly to their four sons, William, Harold, Ralph and Donald Bixby, and their two daughters, Mrs. Ruth B. Stevens and Mrs. Emma B. Johnson.

Deductions for allowed claims and expenses brought the net estate of Mrs. Bixby to $845,962. Similar deductions brought her husband's estate to $775,872. Mr. Bixby's estate had been inventoried at $670,785, his wife's at $1,180,808. Current values were used in making the appraisals.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 2.—Municipal elections in 102 Indiana cities and towns, scheduled for next November, will be postponed for a year under a bill passed by the State General Assembly yesterday. The supporters of Gov. McNutt presented the bill as an economy measure designed to save $300,000.

Supreme Court Orders Name of Neu on Ballot Issues Writ of Mandamus Against Election Board to Place Alderman in Race for Mayor.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, March 2.—The Supreme Court, en banc, issued a peremptory writ of mandamus this afternoon, directing the St. Louis Election Board to place the name of Alderman John Neu Jr. on the ballot as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor.

A formal opinion was not handed down by the Court, but it was noted on the minutes that an opinion would be rendered later. This practice is followed occasionally where there is need for speedy action. How the Judges voted on the decision was not made a matter of record. All seven Judges participated in a conference before the decision was reached. Five of them are Democrats and two Republicans.

The Court did not express itself as to the withdrawal of Neu as a candidate for the Republican nomination to succeed himself as Thirteenth Ward Alderman.

ETHEL BARRYMORE FORCED TO DRAW ON TRUST FUND

Theater Business So Bad She Asks Court to Let Her Divert Son's Income.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The condition of the theater, Ethel Barrymore said yesterday, made it necessary for her to divert the income from a trust fund for the support of her son, John Drew Solt, 19 years old. Permission to do so was obtained from Surrogate James A. Foley. The income amounts to $2700 a year.

The trust fund of $50,000 was established for the youth by his grandfather, the late Samuel P. Colt.

The actress told the court she would rather have the income accumulate but that, as her own income consists solely of her own earnings in the theater, and in view of conditions in the entertainment business, it was impossible for her to provide for her son's support.

Miss Barrymore said the decree of divorce of herself and Russell Griswold Colt provided no alimony and that Colt was providing nothing toward the support and education of their son.

J. B. Thompson, Missouri, Discusses Chicago Session to Discuss Problem.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 2.—Insurance commissioners from several states met behind closed doors at a hotel today to discuss their common problems.

The group in conference comprised the Executive Committee of the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners, under the chairmanship of J. B. Thompson, Missouri commissioner. At their invitation several executives of insurance companies joined the gathering.

Other members of the committee of state commissioners are: G. S. Van Schalk, New York; Theodore Tangeman, Ohio; Garfield Brywn, Minnesota; M. L. Brown, Massachusetts; Theodore Thumeyer, Wyoming; and John C. Kidd, Indiana. Ernest Palmer of Illinois, while not a member of the Executive Committee, was also present.

CONTAMINATED SERUM IS USED; CHILDREN DIE

Kansas City Doctor Says Its Injection to Prevent Measles Caused Death of Two Patients.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 2.—Two children have died here from blood poisoning, said by their physician to have been caused by injections of measles serum which was contaminated.

They are Edward Tilgham Connell, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Connell, who died yesterday, and Rosalie Thornton Gill, 26-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Fairchild Gill, who died this morning. Her sister, Carolyn May Gill, 5, is in a serious condition at a hospital.

The children were treated by a local doctor, the serum being used as a preventive after they had been exposed to measles.

The physician said today tests disclosed that the serum, obtained from a hospital here, was contaminated. He said the serum was prepared from the blood of recovering patients and was not manufactured commercially.

Edward died two days after his inoculation.

HOOVER TO SPEND SEVERAL DAYS IN NEW YORK CITY
WASHINGTON, March 2.—President Hoover today abandoned his plan to sail from New York for Panama and the Pacific Coast next Saturday evening, letting it be known at the White House that he would stay in New York for several days to attend to affairs concerning three charitable organizations founded by him and other "personal matters."

Mr. Hoover hopes to catch the next boat sailing for Panama. Mrs. Hoover will continue on to the Pacific Coast by land as originally planned, and the President will leave the National capital immediately after the inauguration as he had originally intended.

by withdrawals from other states or else take a similar action." Alabama Banks to Reopen with Withdrawal Restrictions. MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 2.—Alabama's banks, closed under Gov. E. M. Miller's 10-day holiday proclamation, were authorized by the State Banking Board to reopen tomorrow, with withdrawals restricted to 5 per cent until the holiday ends.

The authorization was granted at 2 a. m. today after a five-hour session by the Banking Board. The 5 per cent withdrawals were limited to payrolls, necessary living expenses, insurance premiums, tax payments, drafts with bills of lading attached and other purposes necessary in the conduct of business.

Under the Banking Board's orders, new deposits will be segregated and made subject to full withdrawal as trust deposits. The bank had in the year ended sufficient assets to liquidate at the market for 110 cents on the dollar of deposits.

NATIONAL CITY CO. MADE $1,542,000 BY 'BOOM MERGER' OF 3 COMPANIES

S. A. Russell, Vice-President of Investment Firm, Tells of "Insiders' Profits on Oliver Farm Equipment Deal.

By RAYMOND F. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The enormous profits taken by inside promoters in a typical merger during the boom days of 1928 and 1929 were disclosed today before the Senate Stock Market Investigating Committee by Stanley A. Russell, vice-president of the National City Co., in charge of industrial and public utility financing.

Led by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, through a maze of financial operations, Russell finally testified that the National City Co. had made paper and cash profits of $1,542,000 through the creation of the Oliver Farm Equipment Co., by the merger of the Nichols-Shepherd Co. of Battle Creek, Mich., the Hart-Parr Co. of Charles City, Ia., and the Oliver Chilled Plow Co. of South Bend, Ind.

The profits of the National City Co., were so large that Dillon Read & Co., another investment house, demanded a cut in the profits, insisting that they had stepped aside and permitted the merger. In a letter to Russell, Herbert L. Dillon declared that Russell had estimated that the National City Co.'s profit would be somewhere between seven and eight million dollars. Dillon said that his company would "try hard to be reasonable" in pressing its claims.

Replying to this letter, prepared he said, with advice of counsel, Russell denied that he had mentioned any specific sums as possible profits, and reminded Dillon that his company "had been taken care of" through participation in the "bankers' group" that underwrote the stock.

Russell described in detail how he had persuaded the directors of the three organizations to be merged to agree to the consolidation of the three companies. The merger was the National City Co., the National Republic Co. of Chicago and Mason B. Starring of New York. The National Republic Co., the banker for the Hart-Parr Co., and Starring was a director in the Nichols-Shepherd Co.

After consolidating the stock of the three original companies, these promoters, referred to as "the original terms group," bought "the package" of the consolidated securities for $20,625,000. This "package" was divided up into prior preferred, participating convertible and common stock. The originating group fixed a cost value of $94 a share for the prior preferred, $54 a share for the convertible and $10 a share for the common. The prior preferred was sold by the originating group to a distributing group at $96, which in turn sold it to a selling group for $97½, which sold the stock to the public at $100, a spread of $3.

Out of this spread, the National City Co. made a profit of $688,000. The National City Co., according to Russell, secured an option to buy the common stock over a period of five years, ranging from $10 to $50 a share. Exercising one of its options in 1930, the investment house made a profit of $255,000 on common shares. Pecora estimated and Russell verified that the company made a paper profit of $699,000 on the convertible preferred and common stock held the day the stock was first listed.

Although the originating group had paid only $10 a share for the common, the first day it was listed on the Curb Market the price ranged from $42 to $48. The convertible, acquired at a cost of $54, sold the first day at $62 to $68. The prior preferred is now selling at $3.50 a share, and the consolidated common and convertible preferred is selling around $1.50.

After the hearing, Senator Walcott (Rep.), Connecticut, a member of the committee, and a former investment banker, said the operations described today were a "typical merger" of the boom days.

The crowd packing the committee room leaned forward when Pecora read the letter Herbert L. Dillon sent to Russell shortly after the stocks were listed on the exchange. This letter complained that Dillon, Read & Co., had not "been taken care of" as promised by officers of the National City Co. Dillon said his associates "had not been fairly treated" in the participating profits. Dillon claimed that his company had had a contract with Nichols-Shepherd Co. for any future financing and had his company not "stepped aside" the merger would not have been consummated.

In a long letter to Dillon, Russell insisted that there had been no promise to Dillon, Read & Co., and that there was no legal or moral obligation to let that company share in the profits. Russell contended that the contract between the Nichols-Shepherd Co., and Dillon, Read & Co. had been voided.

Answering Pecora's questions, Russell testified that the public had not been informed about the profits the National City Co. was making by the merger.

"Do you favor legal requirements," asked Pecora, "that the offering house should state its complete interest in a transaction, as required by the British Companies act?" "I'd like to think over that subject," Russell replied. "I think more importance is often given to that act than is warranted. Off hand, I can see no particular objection, but I'd like to give more thought to the question."

The hearing opened with Senator Brookhart (Rep.), Iowa, questioning Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank, about the salary of George E. Roberts, a vice-president of the National City Bank. Mitchell said he was not certain but thought it was about $25,000 a year. How much additional Roberts received in bonuses he said he could not tell offhand.

Pecora, the committee counsel, asked Mitchell when he had seen an opinion by the late F. W. Lehmann, of St. Louis, former Solicitor-General, which said formation of the National City Co. by the National City Bank, in 1911, was a violation of the national banking act.

The opinion, or memorandum, was given to George W. Wickham, former Attorney-General, in 1911 and was not made public until last year.

"I think I saw it at one time," Mitchell replied, "but my memory of it is very vague. I could not say definitely when or where."

STOCKHOLDER SUES DIRECTORS OF BANK

NEW YORK, March 2.—A suit charging the directors of the National City Bank with forming a conspiracy to "misappropriate and mismanage the property and assets" of the bank was filed in Supreme Court yesterday by Mrs. Anna Bashlow of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., who said she owned $13,000 worth of National City stock.

The woman's attorney, Edward C. Weinrib, said the action was based on testimony before a Senate subcommittee of Charles E. Mitchell, who resigned Monday as chairman of the bank, and Hugh B. Baker, who resigned as president of the National City company.

The complaint, after citing a number of alleged negligent acts by the directors, asks that the damages suffered by the bank because of these alleged acts be determined and the directors be held financially responsible. The complaint seeks an accounting from the directors and a court order requiring the National City company and the City Bank Farmers Trust Company to pay over to the bank all of the assets and property they are alleged to have received from the bank in various deals.

Barbara Lee Jr.
FASHIONS

For years the sub-deb of St. Louis have cast envious eyes at the Barbara Lee fashions designed for their big sisters. Always eager to oblige, we've helped create there newer, younger Barbara Lee Jr. fashions. They represent the combined efforts of the 19 great stores comprising the Associated Merchandising Corporation, the world's largest retail buying organization. We, as the only St. Louis member of this association, are privileged to present them exclusively in this community.

The Dresses

The demure lace gown with a cape... and the smart crepe afternoon ensemble with its chic dark top and jacket trimmed with fluffy fur... will tell you what exciting modes to expect in Barbara Lee Jr. fashions! They're just to your taste... if you wear size 11 to 17.

BARBARA LEE JR. MILLINERY MODES

A little rough-straw sailor faced and trimmed with checked taffeta, to match the little Ascot scarf... a saucy turban of straw braid with a feather topknot... and a shiny straw hat with bright red cherries blooming underneath the bandeau-brim! Isn't that exciting news at the Barbara Lee Jr. price of

SCOTT WILSON SLATED TO HEAD HIGHWAY BOARD

St. Louisan Expected to Succeed McPheeters as Member and Brownlee as Chairman of Commission

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 2.—An early reorganization of the State Highway Commission, with Scott Wilson of St. Louis, vice-president of the Rice, Stix Dry Goods Co., as chairman, is expected by Democrats in close touch with the administration.

Wilson's appointment is said to have been definitely decided on by Gov. Park. He will succeed Sam B. McPheeters, a Democrat appointed by Gov. Caulfield. One other appointment, a Republican, to succeed Charles Ferguson of Willow Springs, will be made by Gov. Park.

According to reports here, R. S. Brownlee of Brookfield will retire from the chairmanship, though not from the commission. Although the Governor has caused to be introduced in the Legislature a bill to permit him to remove members of the commission at his pleasure, there is no expectation that either Brownlee or William F. Phares, Republican, will be asked to retire, but it is expected that many changes will be made in the department personnel. Chief Engineer Cutler and Assistant Chief Engineer Brown, it is said, will be permitted to retain their posts, but it is reported there will be many changes in bureau chiefs and division engineers.

One of the principal changes contemplated is in the legal department, in which there are seven lawyers, headed by John W. Mather as chief counsel. It is the understanding that Mather is to be succeeded by Louis V. Stigall, former Mayor of St. Joseph, but it is said Mather may retain a place in the department if he desires.

The number of attorneys probably will be reduced from seven to five and salaries increased. The seven now are paid an aggregate of $30,000 a year.

There has been no intimation so far as to the Governor's selection of a Republican Commissioner to succeed Ferguson, though it is virtually certain Ferguson is to be retired. He and McPheeters were appointed by Gov. Caulfield in vacation of the Senate, but their nominations were withdrawn with those of all other Caulfield vacation appointments.

DEATH FROM HEART TROUBLE
VERDICT IN P. J. REGAN DEATH
No Opinion by Coroner's Jury on Cause of Bruises on Face; Funeral Tomorrow.

A Coroner's verdict of death from coronary obstruction of the heart was returned today in the case of Patrick J. Regan, 74-year-old real estate dealer and former City Register, whose body was found Tuesday night in a filling station lot at Vandeventer avenue and Delmar boulevard.

Although Dr. Downey Harris, Coroner's physician, had expressed the opinion that bruises and a cut on Mr. Regan's face were caused by a fall at the time of the heart attack, the Coroner's jury, after mentioning the face injuries, added that the "manner and cause of same could not be determined."

Funeral services for Mr. Regan will be held at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow at St. Margaret's Church, Thirty-ninth street and Flad avenue with interment in Calvary Cemetery. The body is at the Donnelly mortuary, 3840 Lindell boulevard.

Roy Van Heck's seine caught an aluminum ash tray, to which was attached a string, which, when reeled in, brought out a brown pail.

NO. 1 PRESIDENTIAL CHAUFFEUR

WASHINGTON, March 2.—There will be a touch of pride in his bearing as Francis Robinson—"Robbie" to everybody—drives Herbert Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt down Pennsylvania Avenue Saturday. Robbie became presidential chauffeur in 1910 when he began driving William H. Taft around in a steam-powered automobile. He is proud of the fact that he has had no accidents in his 23 years of service.

Robbie will pick Roosevelt up at the Mayflower Hotel Saturday morning, drive to the White House for Hoover and thence to the inaugural ceremonies at the Capitol. Later he will take Hoover to the station where the retiring President boards a train for New York. He probably will continue as head of the White House chauffeurs.

FIGHT TO EXEMPT ST. LOUIS REVENUE FROM SLASH-FAILS

Missouri House Perfects Measures for Compulsory 20 Per Cent Reduction in Property Taxes.

By BOYD F. CARROLL

Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 2.—A compulsory reduction of 20 per cent in general revenue tax which may be levied by Missouri counties and municipalities for a six-year period, is proposed through two bills perfected by the House late yesterday, after defeat of an amendment designed to exempt St. Louis from the tax cuts.

The two bills, by Representative McCawley of Jasper County, would limit counties and municipalities to general revenue levies of not more than 80 per cent of the maximum rates now authorized by the constitution, in any year during a period expiring on Jan. 1, 1938.

The bills were perfected without a record vote, and go on the House calendar for passage.

St. Louis Board Against Bills. Representative Fitzgibbon, St. Louis, offered the amendment excluding St. Louis from provisions of the bill. It was defeated decisively. Fitzgibbon said he offered the amendment at the request of Charles J. Dolan, St. Louis attorney, who appeared before a House committee recently as a representative of the St. Louis Board of Estimate and Apportionment to oppose the bills.

Dolan said the two bills, if passed and approved by the Governor, would reduce the general revenue of St. Louis between $2,750,000 and $3,000,000 a year, and would cripple the city financially.

House members recently received telegrams from the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, urging defeat of the bills on the ground the reduced levy, coupled with reduced assessed valuations and increasing tax delinquencies, would not provide sufficient revenue to carry on necessary municipal activities.

Says People Demand It. McCawley told the House members the two bills were "the only real tax reduction measures before the Legislature," and would force reductions in expenditures by every county and municipality in the State.

"The people of the State are demanding economies," McCawley said. "The State government will have to get along with less money in the next two years and expenditures by local government should be reduced. There is not a county or municipality in the State that can not reduce expenditures. Of course, county and city officials will oppose this proposal. They will not cut expenses unless they are forced to do so."

The bills would curtail only county and municipal levies for general revenue purposes. They do not affect school taxes, nor county and municipal levies for special purposes. The St. Louis tax levy that would be affected is the maximum general revenue rate of $1.35 on the $100 assessed valuation.

ORTLEB CORPORATION PAYS CREDITORS 60 PER CENT

Receivership Attorney for Printing Supply Firm Files His Report.

Charles H. Spoehrer, an attorney, filed his report yesterday as receiver for the Ortleb Corporation. The report shows that the receiver had on hand $2014, realized from the sale of the firm's assets.

The money has been disbursed for payment of general creditors' claims and other obligations, the creditors receiving 60 per cent of the amount due them. Legal fees totaled $1375, of which the receiver's allowance was $625 and his attorneys, Karl P. Spencer and George Elgel, $375 each.

The Ortleb Corporation, a printing supplies concern, was placed in receivership last year on petition of stockholders, to which action the firm consented. Spoehrer was among five receivers cited by Circuit Judge Calhoun to show cause on March 9 why they had not filed reports.

In a letter to the Post-Dispatch, Spoehrer said his report was ready Dec. 19, and this is shown by a Notary attestation attached to the report, but he could not file it until he had prepared and filed Federal and State income tax returns. He said he previously took this matter up with Judge Hall, who was Judge Calhoun's predecessor in equity division No. 3, and informed him of the fact.

The report is a final report, and the receiver asks for his discharge.

MISUNDERSTANDING WITH U. S. MUST BE ENDED, HERRIOT SAYS

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, March 2.—Former Premier Edouard Herriot, speaking last night at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Radical party, said that "a close agreement among the three great democracies—American, English and French—represents the best guarantee of freedom and peace."

For this reason he is convinced, he said, that "we must, on our part, do the utmost to remove a passing misunderstanding which separates us from the United States and respond to the procedure and undertaking of the new government."

Cold ABORTION

(Try this with lemon juice)

Have you ever tried aborting a cold? When you abort your cold, it's gone; the system is rid of it! Try the lemon juice treatment. Squeeze two full-size lemons in a large glass of very hot water and drink without sugar. First, take three tablets of Pape's cold compound an hour apart. This clears the head, dries the nasal passages, reduces any fever. The lemon juice then neutralizes acidity and helps build up the system. Bedtime is best. This treatment will often abort a cold overnight. One cold compound tablet will often check a cold for several hours; then when night comes you can get real relief and often abort it. Any drug-gist has Pape's cold compound. It's perfectly safe. Try it, and you'll never go back to half-way remedies.

SEE NO REASON FOR CITY TO BUY CAR SYSTEM NOW

C. J. Baker Seeking Democratic Mayoralty Nomination Hopes to Get Lin-
"At 10c on Dollar."

Charles J. Baker, real estate salesman, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor, announced in a campaign speech tonight that he was opposed to the purchase of the street car system by the city, for the present at least. He spoke over radio station KMBC.

Baker said he hoped it would be possible to buy the system in a bankruptcy court about 10 cents on the dollar. He added: "If that is not satisfactory to the downtown bankers, who are holding the sack, I want to warn them they will have to take care and tracks off the air when their franchises start to expire around 1937."

He said that the people "will be deceived by the ballyhoo of buses" was expressed by Earl Baker. He said he was not in favor of more mobile than street cars, but that sooner and their operation was subject to fluctuations of prices of tires, oil, gasoline and parts. Main lines should be kept on street cars and buses used as feeder lines, the candidate declared. He said he would oppose continuation of the 10-cent fare suggested that a municipally owned plant might make possible operation of the street cars, and added that trolleys should be operated by two men.

Baker denounced a terminal permit bill pending in the Legislature, which he said was backed by representatives of Eastern Pendergast of Kansas City, which would make public utility grants perpetual.

For Third Street Widening. Although opposed to street widening generally, Baker advocated third street widening down to under a fair system of assessments. He also favored river improvement if it could be without increasing taxes. He said that business interests in the city proper for this purpose, he asserted, by the large property owners.

Baker said, if elected, he would advocate the establishment of a bank, which would receive State and school funds as deposits. He said small loan concerns should be taxed out of existence and operation of chain stores should be restricted by law.

Neun Favors Completing Bond Issue Work This Year. Every effort should be made to complete this year the work remaining under the $37,372,500 issue of 1923, President Neun said.

Board of Aldermen, Republican nominee for Mayor, said speech over radio station WII tonight. Work that had been related, had altered the city greatly, "but we cannot now or arms with the idea that it is finished, the future of the city shaped and its growth provided for." While expenditures must be curtailed, he added, "we must not lose sight of civic vision."

Neun told of plans for completion of Negro City Hospital to provide 800 beds instead of 250 provided for at first. The voter was on a proposal to transfer funds for this purpose in completion of Union Station. "It is a beauty spot was a matter of weeks," Neun continued, and the development of Menasha was expected to go forward this spring.

As rapidly as agreements the railroads could be worked Neun said, the viaduct to Hampton boulevard over the Missouri Pacific and Frisco railroads and the Peres channel should be built grade crossings of the Missouri River at Chippewa, Delor and streets and Gravois avenue be eliminated. The city should have improvements would be made from bond funds.

Neun advocated the establishment of an outer park by creating a park district comprising the city and county "other feasible plan."

S. F. Dickmann Discusses Plights About Use of Paving. Bernard F. Dickmann, president of the Real Estate Exchange, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor, addressed the Building Trades Council tonight, said the city administration had regarded favorably the street paving materials which materially increased costs. He said there had been much complaint about this, and also complained that St. Louis manufacturers of paving materials that the city discriminated against them in contracts.

Jerome F. Duggan, law-enforcement mayorality candidate, speaking last night at KMBC, warned and Kosuth criticized the practices of Neun.

Charles J. Baker, real estate salesman, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor, announced in a campaign speech last night that he was opposed to purchase of the street car system by the city, for the present at least. He spoke over radio station KMOX.

Baker said he hoped it soon would be possible to buy the car system in bankruptcy court at about 10 cents on the dollar. He added: "If that is not satisfactory to the downtown bankers, who are holding the sack, I want to warn them they will have to take their cars and trucks off the streets when their franchise starts to expire around 1937."

Baker denounced a terminable permit bill pending in the Legislature, which he said was backed by a representative of Boss Tom Pendergast of Kansas City, and which would make public utility grants perpetual.

Although opposed to street widening generally, Baker advocated the Third street widening downtown "under" a fair system of assessments. He also favored river front improvement if it could be done without increasing taxes. Recent efforts by business interests to acquire property for this purpose was thwarted, he asserted, by the greed of large property owners.

Neun Favors Completing Bond, Issue Work This Year.

Every effort should be made to complete this year the work remaining under the $87,372,500 bond issue of 1923, President Neun of the Board of Aldermen, Republican nominee for Mayor, said in a speech over radio station WIL last night. Work that had been done, he related, had altered the city map greatly, "but we cannot now fold our arms with the idea that the job is finished, the future destiny of the city shaped and its future growth provided for." While city expenditures must be curtailed, he added, "we must not lose sight of civic vision."

Neun told of plans for completing a Negro City Hospital to provide 600 beds instead of 250 beds, as provided for at first. Completion of Union Station Plaza as a beauty spot was a matter of weeks, Neun continued, and work on the development of Memorial Park was expected to go forward this spring.

As rapidly as agreements with the railroads could be worked out, Neun said, the viaduct to carry Hampton boulevard over the Missouri Pacific and Frisco railroads, Manchester avenue and the Des Peres channel should be built, and grade crossings of the Missouri Pacific at Chippewa, Delor and Bates streets and Gravois avenue should be eliminated. The city's share of these improvements would come from bond funds.

Duggan charged that Dickmann was "dangling jobs" before voters without intending to keep the "innumerable" promises of jobs made on his behalf by Democratic committeemen.

SAM ARKY SEEKING OFFICE AS DEMOCRAT

Discredited as Bondsman, He Changes Politics and Runs for Alderman.

Sam Arky, whose career as a professional bondsman was closed about five years ago, when investigation disclosed he had signed $670,295 of criminal bail bonds although he was qualified for only $25,000, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Alderman of the Nineteenth Ward.

The former bondsman has changed his politics since the incident, as well as his vocation. In bad favor with Circuit Judges, his signature has not been accepted on bonds for about five years, and he now devotes his time to his poultry and meat market at 2327 Franklin avenue. Until recently a corporal in the Republican guard, he has enlisted on the Democratic side in his effort to attain office.

Bond forfeitures totaling $7800, reduced to judgment, but not collected, are still in the Arky record at the Municipal Court Building. Those, Arky says, are "being gradually taken care of," and after he's elected—

"I'm going to pay everything up," he told a Post-Dispatch reporter. "Some of them already are out of the way, by my bringing back two men. Business is bad, and I'm not making any money, but if I am elected an Alderman where I should represent the people, why, maybe it would be different."

"If I go to the Board of Aldermen, I will tell them how to stop the depression and balance the budget by cutting taxes and getting rid of half the city employees. Ask me why two men should draw pay to do one man's work."

"That's the reason I am a Democrat now. The Republicans have not treated me right."

Arky is opposed by seven others for the Democratic nomination for Nineteenth Ward Alderman. However, August H. Niederluecke, Republican incumbent since 1921, is unopposed. The district, with large Negro population, is regularly a Republican ward and was one of four at the November election in the Republican column.

ARRESTED FOR ART SWINDLES
Fugitive Is Found in Sanatorium Where He Was Patient.

BOSTON, March 2.—Wilbur J. Cooke, who police said swindled prominent art dealers in Philadelphia, New York and other cities of large sums of money by means of forged masterpieces of Lowenstoft antique china which he allegedly represented as heirlooms of the Van Rensselaer family, was arrested in Goshen, N. Y., yesterday, local authorities announced.

Cooke, sought more than two years with a woman who authorities said posed as a member of the famous old New York family, was placed under arrest in a sanatorium where he was a patient for a nervous disorder.

BILL TO SELL ST. LOUIS CUSTOM HOUSE PASSED

Purpose Is to Enable City to Acquire Property in Third St. Widening Plan.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The House last night passed the bill, previously passed by the Senate, authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to sell to the City of St. Louis the old customhouse building and site at the southeast corner of Third and Olive streets, St. Louis. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

The measure provides that the Treasury Department is to fix the sale price of the property, which the city must acquire before proceeding with its plan for widening Third street, but which the city has no power to condemn, as it has in the case of private property.

A bill for widening Third street, between Washington avenue and Walnut street, from its present width of 38½ feet to 100 feet, including sidewalks, is now in the Streets Committee of the Board of Aldermen. If it is not acted on at this session of the board, it can be reintroduced at the next session.

Congressman Cochran sponsored the custom house purchase bill in the House.

Purchase of the old Custom House and its site, 120 feet deep, is necessary to the improvement. The building, once the St. Louis Federal Building, is now used by the Government, but will not be needed after the new Federal Building on Memorial Plaza is occupied. The cost of the Third street improvement is estimated at $1,854,000, including the purchase of the Custom House and site, the price of the building being figured at not more than $50,000. The widened highway is intended to connect with Morgan street, to be widened this summer, and will serve as an outlet for Eads Bridge when the upper deck of that bridge is opened to public use on the same terms as the Municipal Bridge.

WED MILLIONAIRE INDIAN TO PROTECT HIM, WIFE SAYS

Testimony She Wanted to Shield Jackson Barnett From People Seeking His Money.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 2.—Mrs. Anna Laura Lowe Barnett testified in the United States District Court here yesterday that she married Jackson Barnett, 51-year-old millionaire Creek Indian, to protect him from "people who were after him to get his money."

"I told him they were after him," she recited, "and that he needed a wife. He said, 'All right, I marry you.' And we got married."

Mrs. Barnett was on the stand in the trial of the action brought by the Government to restore Los Angeles property to Barnett as "an incompetent ward of the Government." Mrs. Barnett's daughter by a previous marriage, Maxine Sturges, is a co-defendant.

Mrs. Barnett denied Government charges that she "kidnaped" Barnett when they were married at Coffeyville, Kan., in February, 1920. "I read about how rich he was," she said, "and I went to see him several times. We tried twice to get married in Oklahoma, but those Indian agents and a man who said he was Jackson Barnett's guardian, wouldn't let us."

SHE WON OUT WITH LOVELY SKIN...You can, too!

You meet him...

The minute you meet a man you can tell whether he's interested. Even before you've had a chance to be clever or sweet, you can tell whether he likes your looks.

Most men don't know anything about clothes, really—but every one of them appreciates a beautiful complexion.

A delicate, soft smooth skin is terribly appealing to them, makes them anxious to know you better.

He gets into a close-up...

Has he asked you for a dance? Of course! You can be sure, if his eyes lighted up when he saw your face, he'll want to get closer—to see if he can believe his eyes!

And now, if you know your skin is softly alluring—you can feel happy dancing with him, because he will be fascinated.

Girls, watch out! You must be able to pass the close-up complexion test.

He can't resist alluring skin

Your soft, sweet, white skin has stirred him. Face, arms, shoulders...

When the dance is over, he hates to let you go. May he have another dance? May he see you home? See you tomorrow? Meet your family?

It's up to you now! You've attracted him with the oldest, most real allure in the world—smooth, soft skin.

Movie Stars do it this way

You don't have to be a Hollywood star to have the lure of Hollywood skin.

You can use the same complexion care the stars use—actually 9 out of 10 stars use fragrant, white Lux Toilet Soap!

In the big love scenes, the men don't really have to act! They are so deeply moved by the loveliness of the stars' exquisite skin.

To be fascinating...irresistible...give your skin this same gentle care.

"A FLAVOR THAT IS TRULY DELICIOUS"

Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson

With two homes to superintend it is any wonder that Mrs. Johnson is the careful, particular housekeeper that the following expression shows her to be? "I tried bread after bread until I discovered Ward's Soft Bun Bread, or rather until one of my friends told me about it. And not a brand that I ever used could equal Ward's...not by any standard of comparison."

All St. Louis seems to be discovering this fact, as you did, Mrs. Johnson; that "one grew stale quickly. Another made perfectly wretched toast. A third had that flat, insipid, almost tasteless flavor. Ward's remains fresh to the last slice; makes uniformly crisp and mellow toast; and has a flavor that is truly delicious. No wonder it's popular with all who have tried it."

Ward's Soft Bun Bread is made of the purest and finest ingredients obtainable...in a modern, spotlessly clean bakery. It is a larger, better loaf...the best bread on the market today...endorsed by Good Housekeeping Institute...and guaranteed to be fresh and satisfactory in every respect, or your money back. MILK PRICE REGULATION BILL
By the Associated Press.
ST. PAUL, Mo., March 2.—Placing dairy farmers on the same basis as public utilities' companies to establish a fair rate of income to producers for the duration of present conditions, was proposed in the Minnesota Senate today by Senator Robert Sell of Adrian.
His measure would empower the State Commissioner of Agriculture to set the price of milk in much the same manner as the State Railroad and Warehouse Commission now establishes rates on telephone and other utilities.

Many people put all the blame for common ills on

WET FEET
DRAFTS
OVERHEATED ROOMS

...but they may also lack good resistance

They make the mistake of thinking that unfavorable outward conditions and stuffy indoor living are entirely to blame for their troubles at this time of year.

More likely than not, their own physical condition is partly at fault. One reason they are unable to stand exposure may be because they lack good general resistance!

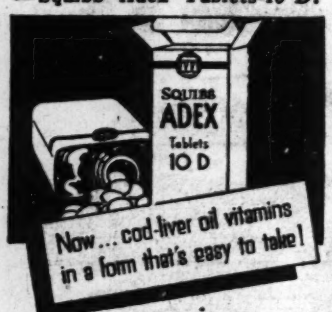

If this is the trouble, they should lose no time building up a pleasant man in plenty by Squibb Adex Tablets-10 D.

Squibb Adex Tablets supply an abundance of the factor known to play an important part in increasing general resistance—Vitamin A. They contain another factor which is particularly needed at this dreary season of the year—sunshine Vitamin D.

Adex are pleasant, easy to take. Chocolate coated tablets! People whose resistance is low should start immediately to build themselves up. They should begin now with Adex tablets and keep it up every day.

As soon as their inner resources are strengthened, they will be less concerned about outer conditions.

SIMPLE TO GET RID OF ACID STOMACH NOW

Almost Instant Relief This Way

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

According to many authorities, some 80% of the people of today have acid stomach. This is because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

It usually makes itself felt in headaches, nausea, "gas," "biliousness," and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

RAINEY APPEARS CERTAIN CHOICE FOR SPEAKERSHIP

Byrns Drops Out of Race as Democrats Go Into Caucus—Likely to Be Party Leader.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 2.—The Democratic members-elect of the new House gathered in caucus shortly after 4 o'clock today to elect a speaker and to organize for the new Congress.

As he went into the House chamber for the meeting behind closed doors, Representative Rainey of Illinois, the floor leader, said: "I will be elected."

Representative McReynolds of Tennessee, said: "We are going to elect Representative Byrns (Tennessee) floor leader if we can."

With withdrawal from the speakership race of Byrns and Cresser of Ohio in favor of Rainey, indications were that McDuffie of Alabama, party whip, would have little chance.

Shortly before the Democrats gathered, a meeting was held by Rainey, Byrns, Cresser, Cullen, head of the powerful Tammany delegation, and their campaign managers. The plans of Rainey called for Byrns to place the Illinois member in nomination, with Cresser and Cullen to second the nomination.

Rainey then planned to nominate Byrns for floor leader. Byrns agreed to appoint Greenwood of Indiana as whip, if elected. Representative Lea of California, was Rainey's choice for chairman of the caucus to succeed Arnold of Illinois.

In addition, the Rainey-Byrns forces planned to elect a new slate of House officers.

Bankhead Thrown Overboard.
The caucus nominates the Democratic candidate for Speaker and also chooses a floor leader. Republicans already have named Snell for Speaker; but in view of the preponderant majority for the other party, success for the Democratic nominee is a foregone conclusion.

Rainey gained additional support when Cresser of Ohio withdrew from the speakership race, and announced he would speak in the caucus for the Illinois member.

Representative Arnold of Illinois, chairman of the caucus, said Byrns "will be a candidate for the leadership"—meaning that Representative Bankhead of Alabama, who was boosted by the Rainey supporters for the floor leadership, has been thrown overboard.

"There is no doubt in my mind," Bankhead said, "that a deal has been made."

Bankhead had not been a candidate for the leadership, but was supporting McDuffie for speaker.

Byrns declined to deny or affirm the reports of the combination with Rainey, but his campaign managers said the Tennesseean had thrown his support to the Illinois veteran.

It seems that Byrns plans to appoint Cullen of New York as party whip, if he is elected leader.

A Defeat for Garner.
The swing indicates that the Rainey and Byrns groups, which have opposed Speaker Garner as French envoy to the United States. When questioned about the report, Ambassador Claudet gave guarded confirmation to the report that he would return soon to France.

It is believed that negotiations are under way, in accordance with diplomatic tradition, to determine whether M. De Laboulaye would be acceptable to this country.

whip, if he is elected leader.

McDuffie was understood to have the support of Garner, although the Vice-President-elect has taken no active part in the campaign for his successor.

Garner becomes Vice-President and presiding officer of the Senate Saturday.

The new Speaker will take control of an overwhelming Democratic House and will have the responsibility of putting through President-elect Roosevelt's legislative program in a special session.

In addition, the Rainey-Byrns forces have agreed to seek to oust South Trimble, Clerk of the House now, and elect Representative Nelson of Missouri, a "lame duck."

About 60 new members-elect held a rump caucus, engaged in a row over adjournment that resulted in about 20 walking out, and finally adopted a resolution endorsing the Democratic platform, President-elect Roosevelt and whoever is nominated for Speaker, at the regular caucus.

IGOE NAMES M. J. MCENERY AS HIS PRIVATE SECRETARY
Michael J. McEnery, 5207 Cates avenue, has been appointed private secretary to President Igoe of the Board of Police Commissioners.

The new secretary's principal duty at present will be to interview at the steady stream of callers seeking various appointments in the department. It was partly to relieve the board secretary, Otto Immenhausen, of this duty that McEnery was appointed.

McEnery has had considerable experience in police work, having been a patrolman on headquarters duty from 1895 to 1906, when he was appointed a civilian employee. He resigned from the department in 1918 to enter the real estate business. He is 62 years old.

The last Police Board head to have a private secretary was former United States Senator Hawes, who was Police Commissioner 30 years ago.

FIGHTS OFF TWO ARMED MEN WHO TRY TO HOLD HIM UP
When two armed men attempted to hold up Melville Murray in front of his home, 5104 Wells avenue, last night, Murray struck at them. One hit him on the head with a revolver. He called for help and the robbers fled.

Michael Byrne, grocer at 3753 Page boulevard, was ordered into the refrigerator by two robbers. They took $81 from the cash register and 12 cartons of cigarettes.

Owen Shannon, chief clerk for the Laclede Gas Light Co., reported the theft of $82 from his office desk late yesterday. He said a man in paying a bill of $1.89 gave him $2 and he left the office to get 11 cents change. When he returned the man had gone and the desk was rifled. Shannon said $55 of the stolen money belonged to him. The thief also took a bundle of worthless checks returned to the company by banks.

NOT ALIGNED WITH DUGGAN
J. Rhey McCord, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Comptroller, said today that circulars for his candidacy and for that of Jerome F. Duggan, who is running for the party nomination for Mayor, had been distributed together in the Seventeenth Ward. McCord denied responsibility for this.

"I welcome honest support from any source," he said, "but have aligned myself with no other candidate for any office and have furnished no other candidate with my literature."

DISTRICTING BILL PASSED BY HOUSE, VOTE IS 96 TO 39

Jasper County Legislators Fight Measure Putting Them in G. O. P. Territory but in Vain.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, March 2.—The redistricting bill which would give St. Louis and St. Louis County combined only three Congressmen was passed by the House today, 96 to 39.

Members from Southwest Missouri fought the bill bitterly in order to keep Jasper County out of one of the three Republican districts provided by the measure. St. Louis members, unanimously Democratic, did not fight the measure, although some members from Jasper and St. Louis County voted against it.

When Representative McCawley, from Jasper County, argued against the placing of his county in a Republican district and the awarding of two Congressmen to Jackson County, where Kansas City is, Raymond Roberts from St. Francois County, jumped to his feet.

"I'll tell you why we give Jackson County two districts," he shouted. "It's because Jackson County has the best Democratic organization in the State. That's why, if Jasper County and St. Louis had organizations like that, the whole State would be Democratic and just like we did this time, we'd elect 13 Democrats to Congress."

Just like I wish we would every time.

Representative Maples, Republican of Christian County, took the floor for a moment after one of his minority colleagues had appealed to "the fair-minded Democrats."

"Never mind about that," he shrilled. "This is a dandy Democratic law. Go to it. You don't owe us anything for the next four years."

The House members cheered him and then began to vote.

YOUTH GETS 7-YEAR TERM FOR ATTEMPTED ROBBERY
Edward Struckmeyer, Former Prisoner in Reformatory, Found Guilty by Jury.

Edward Struckmeyer, 20 years old, of 1512A Elliott avenue, was found guilty of attempted robbery with a dangerous weapon by a jury in Circuit Judge Landwehr's court yesterday. Punishment was fixed at seven years in the penitentiary.

Struckmeyer was captured after a police search of the neighborhood surrounding Fairground Park. With another man, he entered the automobile of a woman, and stole $250.

Struckmeyer and his son, Alvin, were about to drive from the curb at 4114 Natural Bridge avenue. The Bastans identified Struckmeyer as a man who commanded them to drive at the point of a revolver, which they refused to do, compelling Struckmeyer and his companion to flee.

A second man was arrested in the police chase. With an ordinary small brush you just tint those streaks or patches of gray back to your natural shade—whether blonde, brown or black. 250-GALLON STILL SEIZED IN A HOUSE IN JENNINGS
St. Louis County deputy sheriffs who raided a house at 8868 Cozzena avenue, Jennings, yesterday and arrested a man they found in the place.

The deputies, who had obtained a search warrant after receiving an anonymous tip, found a completely equipped place, with a cooker on the second floor, coils and condensers in the attic and 2500-gallon empty vats in the basement. They confiscated 32 gallons of alcohol and 10 sacks of corn sugar.

The man arrested said he was Lupo Pietro, 32 years old, and that he had been working at the house for another man. He was released on $1000 bond. A woman and six children in the house, who said they did not know the identity of the still proprietor, were not arrested.

DIRECTED VERDICT FREES GROCER OF ARSON CHARGE

Ervin Buxner Acquitted After State Witness Denies Making Identification to Police.

Ervin Buxner, 5887A Minerva avenue, was acquitted of an arson charge in a directed verdict in Circuit Judge Bader's court yesterday. The Court sustained a defense demurrer after one of the State's principal witnesses, James Walker, Negro janitor, denied he had seen Buxner coming out of a grocery and meat market at 2847 Clark avenue shortly before a fire there last June 19. Walker also denied making any statement to that effect to police.

Buxner, 20 years old, is a brother of Sol Buxner, proprietor of the store. Firemen testified they found excelsior, rags and an exploded can in the basement. Policemen testified there was an odor of gasoline in the store. Negro residents of the neighborhood said there had been an explosion just before fire broke out in the building.

30 PERSONS HURT IN WRECK OF BELFAST MAIL TRAIN
Second Such Accident Since Railway Strike Started; Switch Reported Tamped With.

BELFAST, March 2.—Thirty passengers were injured today when a mail train from Belfast to Omagh was derailed at Markets Junction, four miles from Omagh. All the coaches left the tracks and were wrecked, but the engine remained on the rails.

It was reported that switch points had been tampered with and that wires had been cut. This was the second mail train wreck since a strike of railway men started several weeks ago.

BODY OF UNIDENTIFIED MAN, SHOT IN HEAD, FOUND ON LEVEE
The body of a man, shot through the head, a revolver with two discharged cartridges beside him, was found about 8:30 a. m. today on the levee about 3900 South.

He was about 60 years old, weighed 165 pounds, 5 feet 10 inches in height, and wore blue trousers, gray flannel shirt, tan shoes and brown overcoat. There were no marks of identification.

The body was found by Mrs. Gertrude Lichtfuss, 3900 South Main street, who summoned police. At City Hospital it was said the man had been dead about an hour.

JANUARY R. F. C. LOANS TO ST. LOUIS BANKS

$1,300,000 Advance to Tower Grove Depository Heads Month's List for Missouri.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 2.—A loan of $1,300,000 to the Tower Grove Bank and Trust Co. of St. Louis was the largest authorized for any Missouri bank by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation during January, it was shown in the corporation's monthly report last night.

Loans to other St. Louis banks were: North St. Louis Trust Co. $403,000; Baden Bank, $345,000, repaid in full; Cherokee National, $220,000; Chippewa Trust, $220,000; Jefferson Bank and Trust, $330,000; Jefferson-Gravola Bank, $330,000; Water Tower Bank, $280,000; Southwest Bank, $265,000.

Loans to St. Louis County banks included: Lemay Ferry Bank of Luxemburg, $220,000; Bank of Ferguson, $85,000, and University City Bank and Trust, $27,400.

The money obtained by the North St. Louis Trust Co. was not borrowed for use in the ordinary course of business, but merely to have on hand in case of emergency in view of unsettled conditions, according to W. H. Hill, treasurer.

The money has since been returned to the R. F. C. Co., he said, and the bank owes no money to the R. F. C. or the Federal Reserve Bank.

FIREMAN KNOCKED OFF, HURT IN CRASH OF LADDER TRUCK
James Riehl, Tiller Man, Injured When Rear End of Vehicle Survers Against Post.

James Riehl, tiller man of Hook and Ladder Co. No. 15, suffered a head injury last night when he was knocked from his truck as its rear end swerved against a lamp post in the 1200 block of South Broadway as it was returning from a fire.

The driver told police something blew into his face, causing him to lose momentary control of the apparatus. Riehl, who is 33 years old, and lives at 4027 South Grand boulevard, was taken to City Hospital where his condition was reported as serious.

The company was returning from a fire in an automobile at Third and Marion streets in which James McGill, a 32-year-old Negro, of 1544 South Third street, suffered serious burns in attempting to beat out the flames from his car. He was taken to City Hospital No. 2.

TO HOLD UP ROAD CONTRACT

JEFFERSON CITY, March 2.—State highway road bids on work amounting to more than $3,000,000 will be accepted here Saturday, but no contracts will be awarded until definite action has been taken on the automobile license fee reduction bill by the Senate, according to highway officials. The Highway Department has indicated the reduced revenues under the bill would make the work impossible. Involved in the letting are 10 projects in 41 counties including 6 miles of concrete, 85 miles of gravel and 162 miles of graded earth surfacing. The House passed the fee bill yesterday.

DETOUR AROUND CONSTITUTION IN BILL JUST PASSED

Missouri House Amends Measure So Legislators Can Be Hired by State for Legal Work.

By Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 2.—A device designed to evade provisions of the Missouri Constitution prohibiting the appointment of any member of the Legislature to any State or municipal office during the legislative term for which he was elected, is provided—at least so far as lawyer members of the Legislature are concerned—in a bill passed today by the House. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Originally the bill was intended to prevent State departments from employing special attorneys to represent them in legal matters, and to require that all State departments be represented by the Attorney-General's department.

As amended by the House, and passed, the bill would authorize the employment, in addition to a staff of 12 regular assistant Attorneys-General, of an unlimited number of special attorneys, by the Attorney-General, with the consent of the Governor, to represent State Departments, boards, and bureaus, liquidating officers of defunct banks, or to handle any other State legal business, regularly or as special counsel. Their fees would be paid from funds of the department or bank represented, in amounts to be fixed by the Attorney-General and the Governor.

Special Oath Struck Out. In its original form the bill provided any such special attorneys appointed to handle State business should be designated as "special assistant Attorneys-General" and be required to take an oath of office. House lawyers objected that this would preclude appointment of lawyer members of the Legislature to bank liquidation posts, or as special counsel for departments, due to the constitutional provision. Representative O'Bryan of Randolph County, asserted the provision "would cut the throats of all lawyer member of the Legislature," so far as any State legal patronage was concerned.

Before passage of the bill the House adopted an amendment by O'Bryan, which struck out the requirement that the special attorneys who may be employed by the Attorney-General and Governor should be designated as assistant Attorneys-General and take an oath of office. It substituted a provision describing the attorneys as "such other attorneys," and eliminated the requirement of an oath of office.

"Detour Around Constitution." O'Bryan and other House lawyers supporting the amendment admitted the changes, in their opinion, permitted a detour around the constitutional provision without violating it at least technically, and would permit the appointment of lawyer members of the Legislature to the jobs contemplated by the bill. Section 12 of article four of the Constitution provides that no Senator or Representative shall be appointed to any State or municipal office, during the term for which he was elected.

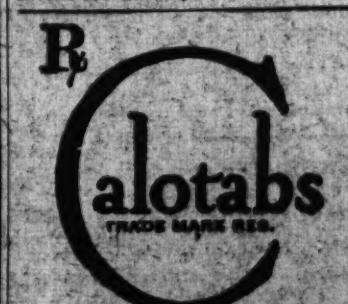

If the bill is finally passed, it would abolish the legal divisions of several state departments, including the State Highway Department, and would open the way for the employment of a large number of attorneys. The principal legal patronage now open to attorneys favored by the administration is appointment as counsel for liquidators of defunct banks. So far in the present administration all such appointments are being made by Gov. Park, and so far no limit has been placed on the fees to be received by such counsel. Under the pending bill lawyer members of the Legislature would be eligible to such appointments.

MACHINE GUN ATTACK ON CHICAGO TRUCK MAN

He Is Wounded in Arm, but Saves Life by Dropping to the Ground.

CHICAGO, March 2.—A machine gun gang attempted to assassinate James McCarthy, 40 years old, trucking contractor, last night as he alighted from his automobile in front of his home, but McCarthy saved himself by dropping to the ground. He suffered a bullet wound in the left arm.

Police advanced the theory the shooting was an outgrowth of a strike of the Ash Wagon Drivers' Union. McCarthy is a partner in a cartage company operating 20 trucks for the city.

USE OF ILLINOIS GASOLINE TAX TO RELIEVE PROPERTY BURDEN

Six Organizations Confer on Support for Bill—State-wide Campaign Planned.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 2.—A meeting of six State-wide organizations was held here tonight to discuss Senate bill 203, which proposes to distribute gasoline tax revenue to the counties, cities and townships, in lieu of all property tax for the construction and maintenance of roads, streets and bridges.

The organizations represented at the conference were Illinois Agricultural Association, represented by Earl C. Smith, president; Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary; Illinois Municipal League, Mayor John W. Kapp Jr. of Springfield, and A. D. McLeary, secretary; Illinois State Grange, A. E. Eckert, State master; Illinois Association Real Estate Boards, George F. Nixon, president, and Charles S. Wanless of Springfield, and the Agricultural Transportation Association; Senator Simon E. Lantz, leader of the farm bloc. Senator Earl B. Searcy, who introduced the bill, also was present.

Details of companion bills to abolish all property taxes levied by cities, townships and counties for construction and maintenance of roads, streets and bridges were worked out. Plans were discussed for State-wide campaign to secure adoption of this program which its sponsors say will effect an annual tax saving of more than $25,000,000.

10,000 CHINESE REPORTED FLEEING IN JEHOL PROVINCE

Japanese Pause to Consolidate Forces for Advance on Capital, Less Than 100 Miles Away.

GOVERNOR'S PLANS STILL IN DOUBT

Is Expected to Withdraw or Join With Manchukuo—Break With Marshal Chang Rumored.

Associated Press. LINGYUAN, Jehol, China, March 2.—Major-General Tadaaki Kawahara, commanding the Sixteenth Japanese Infantry, swept through the retreating Chinese, and marched on toward Jehol City. At 4 p. m. he occupied the town of Sutaoling and two hours later troops passed through Peking, 15 miles northeast of Ping-chuan, less than 75 miles from the Jehol capital.

CHINCHOW, March 2.—Whether the Chinese defense of Jehol province already was collapsing or not had not been the question in the minds of the Japanese command today as the Japanese forces checked their headlong advance on the Chingfeng-Lingyuan line, with the capital, Jehol City (Chengtefu), less than 100 miles away. Air scouts reported more than 10,000 Chinese were retreating rapidly westward on the Lingyuan-Pingchuan road "like a huge snake." Japanese doubt if the Chinese morale, shaken by the defeats and defections of the last week, would permit the Chinese to reorganize to fight for Pingchuan and Jehol City, the only important towns in the province still in Chinese possession.

Reports that the Japanese continued westward from Lingyuan were authoritatively denied as premature. Headquarters were pausing to permit divisional headquarters and supply trains to arrive. Reports say Governor Will Flee. Rumors were thick that Gen. Tang Yu-lin, the Governor of Jehol, was abandoning the struggle and was fleeing or ready to flee southward to the Great Wall of China and Peking or that he was seeking to join the Japanese-sponsored government of Manchukuo.

Japanese officers, however, did not conceal high hopes that Gov. Tang would be "reasonable." Japanese correspondents were stressing reports of friction between Tang and Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, North China military ruler. The situation at Chingfeng, transportation center of the province, was confused in reports. Although occupation of the city was verified, it appeared there was severe fighting between Chinese and a part of a Japanese army eastward of the city.

The sixteenth infantry brigade under Maj. Gen. Tadaaki Kawahara, entered Lingyuan this morning and merged with Maj. Gen. Heijiro Hatada's fourteenth infantry. They were only 75 miles by motor highway between them and Jehol City. Meanwhile Maj. Gen. Kennosuke Ito's fourth cavalry brigade, vanguard of the northern offensive, entered Tungliang, waited at Chingfeng, 15 miles north of Jehol City, for the eleventh infantry led by Maj. Gen. Kunio Matsuda. The latter was continuing its advance after taking Chingfeng.

Governor's Cavalry Surrenders. Gov. Tang's cavalry force surrendered yesterday at Chingfeng, joining the Mogi brigade to enable the city without a fight. Gov. Tang's commander there, Shi Wen-shu, already had hoisted Japanese and Manchukuo flags and he was reported planning to join Japanese ranks in the final advance.

It was thought Tang might decide to make his flight from Jehol City with a fleet of fast American automobiles he owns. This would enable him to carry his harem and a large part of his wealth. The portly Governor, popularly known as the "opium king of Jehol," has huge stocks of opium and gold. Property holdings and business interests in China proper also are expected to influence him to return there.

Japanese reports said recently the Chinese were holding one of his favorite wives at Peking as a hostage to make him put up a resistance. This report followed futile attempts to persuade him to join the Japanese side. An associate of Marshal Chang, before the latter was driven out of Manchuria, Tang has governed Jehol as a special administrator state of the North China area under Chang's rule.

LINGYUAN, Jehoi, China, March 2.—Major-General Tadahsi Kawahara, commanding the Sixteenth Japanese Infantry, swept through this city this morning on the heels of the retreating Chinese, and reached on toward Jehoi City.

The gold countries were the last to feel the coming of the depression, and the reason that they are now feeling it more severely than the others is that a purchase from them involves payment in gold or in terms of gold. That is to say, if one wishes to purchase an article from a gold standard country, in the last resort one has to obtain gold to pay for it. Since gold is the dearest commodity to buy in a world in which everything else is cheap, it is obvious that every one endeavors to buy in a country which is not on the gold standard.

Thus the export trade of the world standard countries is quickly diminishing and unemployment rapidly increasing.

It is true that the export trade of the paper currency countries is not increasing, but it is falling much less rapidly; in some cases exports are being maintained, and in others they are being increased.

Great Britain, the chief non-gold country, has been able to alleviate the worst pains of the crisis through having kept in re-alm the gold standard, and the other countries have already used—namely, devaluation of currency in terms of gold, and a protective tariff.

Shelter in Financial Billiards.
Great Britain alone among the European participants in the Great War had refrained from devaluing her currency immediately after, and consequently was the only country that has not been forced to alter in when the billiards reached its acutest form in 1931. Whether or not she would have been wiser to have used these devices sooner is a difficult question to answer, but there is no doubt that when she decided to use them they brought relief at a moment when it had become urgent and imperative.

The protective tariff brought succor to the Japanese economy, but there is no doubt that when she decided to use them they brought relief at a moment when it had become urgent and imperative.

The sixteen Japanese brigades under Maj.-Gen. Tadahsi Kawahara, and the Japanese army, were reported to have been passing the fourteenth Japanese Infantry, who only 75 miles by motor fight between this and Jehoi City.

London Times Reports Distinct Improvement in Great Britain's Trade and Industry in 1932

Measure of Recovery Attributed More to Putting on Protective Tariff Than to Going Off Gold.

THE LONDON TIMES, in its comprehensive annual financial and economic survey, published Feb. 2, describes conditions which it believes are signs of real business improvement in Great Britain for the year 1932.

It asserts the nation "has been able to alleviate the worst pains of the crisis by having held in reserve two defensive devices: First, going off the gold standard; and, second, putting on a protective tariff which brought succor to famished trades and industries."

The change to paper money exclusively for domestic transactions is not credited with having accomplished any extraordinary benefits. On the contrary, the conclusion is reached that "there is no magic either in gold or paper."

Following is the newspaper's editorial summary of the conditions disclosed by its extensive survey of trade and industry:

The world economic crisis continued throughout 1932 with one important difference, that its spearhead was directed more against the gold than the non-gold countries, while their sufferings showed that monetary armor, however fine the metal, affords no protection against the crisis. That in itself is a hopeful sign, for, as the economic pressure becomes more severe in the gold countries, their leaders will be driven to co-operate with the non-gold countries in the task of solving the grave economic problems they had imagined were confined to the non-gold nations, but now realize are common to all.

Says Gold Standard Countries Suffer.

In the closing months of the year the iron, coal, and steel industries, though by no means prosperous, were hopeful that the bottom of the depression had been touched. It is true that railway traffic shows a further decline, but as a trade index this has no longer its former significance. Today a transport index would have to include road with railway traffic; there can be little doubt that in the aggregate there is more traffic than before the war, though less than a year or two ago.

Debt Conversion.
In domestic finance the past year was historic. A vast Government debt conversion was carried through, though it represented a smaller proportion of the national debt than Goschen's scheme, nevertheless greater in magnitude than any similar transaction in this or any other country. It was a well-devised plan, admirably executed and supported by the investing classes.

Out of a total of £2,085,000,000 of 5 per cent war loan, no less than £1,920,000,000 was voluntarily converted into 3½ per cent stock. At the same time the terms of redemption were altered. It ceased to be a stock with a fixed date of maturity (June 1, 1947) and became a series of "irredeemable" class, the interest being repaid only at the discretion of the Government in and after 1932. Two factors were responsible for the success of this operation, cheap money and government credit. Bad trade and cheap money always go together. Money in 1932 was cheaper than it had been for nearly a year. Having given to the budget the first honest balance it had known for a year the Government was able to take full advantage of the cheapness of money and to launch its series of conversion operations.

British Credit on 3½ Pot. Basis.
British credit now stands on a 3½ per cent basis, but the margin between short and long term rates is wider than usual, and it seems not improbable that British credit will improve further unless some unforeseen development occurs to prevent it. Every debtor in the world, Government, municipal and industrial, benefited from the British Government's conversion policy. The launching of the war loan scheme immediately caused an upward readjustment of all investment values. In this way capital values, destroyed in the crisis of 1931, were in nearly every case more than made good. That in itself has helped to restore confidence.

In the international sphere the story of 1932 is less satisfactory than in the domestic. Indeed the position abroad in some respects became definitely worse. Australia was one and Germany another of the few outstanding exceptions. In the case of Australia the improvement was due partly to the dismissal of Mr. Lang from the Premiership of New South Wales and the firm resolve of the country to adhere to the Premier's Agreement of June, 1931. Australia's budgets, though still unbalanced, are less so than they were. Her recovery is a remarkable demonstration of the beneficial value of universal downward adjustment of wages, salaries, and other costs of production, including interest, to meet a falling price level. In no country has the downward adjustment been more evenly spread than in Australia, and she is already feeling the benefits of patriotism and practical wisdom in this matter.

"Germany Has Recovered."
Germany too has recovered, thanks also to measures of self-help and common contribution. Finding that relief for the unemployed in itself was a negative step, she is trying the experiment—resorted to in this country after the Napoleonic wars—of subsidizing work and wages instead of idleness.

ELECTED OR NOT, HITLER CABINET MEANS TO STAY

Chancellor and Hugenberg Announce This Determination
No Matter How Sunday's Vote Goes.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 2.—No matter how German voters may cast their ballots in the election Sunday, the group now in control of the Government is determined to remain at the helm. While Hitler, Hugenberg, Von Papen and Seide are hopeful they may obtain a Reichstag majority, failure to do so will not mean their retirement.

They have made this plain in their speeches meanwhile 60,000 of Hitler's brown-shirted storm troops and Franz Seide's Steel Helmet war veterans have been made auxiliaries to the Prussian police force and steps have been taken to assure support of the army.

Chancellor Hitler made this statement: "In order to satisfy God and our conscience, we have once more turned to the German people. They themselves are to decide. If they should desert us in this hour, then heaven forbid, we give up. We shall continue on the path that is necessary in order that Germany may not go under."

Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Minister of Economics and Agriculture, spoke along the same lines: "All depends upon the present forces of deliverance remaining in control. They are determined to stay, come what may."

Says Funk Is "Finished".
Walter Funk, the new chief of the Government press Department, and a co-worker of Hitler, said to the Reichstag: "Gentlemen, I want you to grasp the brutal fact that the accession of Hitler to power did not mark a mere change of Government, but a change of regime in Germany."

There could be only two Germanys, he said, a Nationalist or a Communist Germany. Parliamentary Government, he said, was "finished."

Dr. Ernst Oberfohren, floor leader of the German Nationalist party in the last Reichstag, told a Cologne audience that the matter which resulted the election must bring this Government will remain in charge.

Hitler, in a speech last night, said he would do more for the workers of Germany than they could expect from Communism. He said he planned "to mortise the pillar of labor in the structure of the 'irredeemable' class, an arate entity. In one of the few specific elaborations he has made in his four-year plan for workers, the Chancellor said his compulsory labor program would be a "class antagonism" with "enobling manual labor" for all.

Charges Red Plot.
Hermann Gering, Minister without portfolio, in the Cabinet, in a speech, sought to silence rumors that more severe repressive measures were planned this week-end against Communists and Socialists. He said their lives were not endangered if they kept strictly within the law.

He declared the incendiary fire at the Reichstag Building Monday meant to inaugurate a series of violent acts culminating in a Communist revolution. For this reason, he asserted, the Government was justified in promulgating its drastic decrees of the last two days, which have greatly increased penalties for treason and have placed Germany under virtual martial law. The Communists, Gering said, have spread hand bills calling for the formation of groups for so-called self-protection, but really intended to provoke civil war. Communists interpreted this as an obviously intended threat to terrorize the population.

As Commissioner for the Prussian Interior Ministry, Gering has ordered police in that state make "ruthless" action to suppress demonstrations of opposition forces.

More Communists Arrested.
Two Jewish clerks were held by police after a raid on quarters of the Jewish Citizens' Central Union where documents were seized. More than 500 Communists have been arrested throughout the country since the burning of the Reichstag Building and the arrests continue.

Vice Chancellor Franz Von Papen made an appeal for Catholic support of the Hitler Government in Bavaria, home state of both himself and Hitler. Von Papen, who was formerly a leader of the Catholic Centrists now opposing the present Government, declared he could not "imagine the reconstruction of a new Reich" without inclusion of Catholic conservatives.

Despite threats of Hitlerites to overthrow the Bavarian State Government, the Chancellor said he still adhered to the Federal form of government in which Bavaria is a free state and deprecated the excitement caused by the threats.

First of Painting-Markers for Historic St. Louis Spots

WALTER EGGER, of Young Men's Division, Chamber of Commerce and painting of the old Lucas Market, to be erected at Twelfth boulevard and Locust street as a marker for the historic site. Gen. Grant is to be shown with a load of cordwood in the foreground, the Four Courts in the background.

Paintings to Mark St. Louis Spots Famous in History

Pictures Will Depict Old-Time Scenes—First to Show Grant Selling Wood at 12th and Locust.

Historic spots in St. Louis are to be marked with paintings of old-time scenes in a movement explained at yesterday's luncheon of the Scottish Rite Club at the American Annex by McCune Gill, vice-president of the Title Insurance Corporation and authority on local history. The paintings will be enclosed in bronze frames, covered with plate glass, and will be fastened to a building wall at the designated spots.

The marking is to be done by the Young Men's Division, Chamber of Commerce, led by Earl Batz and Walter Eggers. The movement grew out of a suggestion made by Gill last December, in an address in which he figuratively took the Kiwanis Club on a charrette drive to the St. Louis of 1832, from the Place d'Armes on the riverfront to the Rue de Roi, or King's Highway, and back over the St. Charles road, the beginning of the Santa Fe and Oregon trails.

The first of these markers is soon to be erected at Twelfth and Locust. "It is about 18 by 24 inches and will picture exactly what the view was years ago. Here stood Lucas market, and for that reason we now have the wide Twelfth boulevard plaza."

First to Show Gen. Grant.
"In the foreground will appear Gen. Grant, selling cordwood, as he actually did on that spot. The view to the south will show the old Fort of San Carlos, the beginning of the Santa Fe and Oregon trails."

"The first of these markers is soon to be erected at Twelfth and Locust. "It is about 18 by 24 inches and will picture exactly what the view was years ago. Here stood Lucas market, and for that reason we now have the wide Twelfth boulevard plaza."

"An Olive street horse car may be seen crossing Twelfth street. And so careful have these young men been that they've actually counted the windows of the exact street cars and copied the exact shade of color."

"Below the picture will appear descriptive lettering and, appropriately, the emblem of the organization. When these markers have been placed, we plan to reproduce them in half-tone, with descriptions and historical matter, in a pamphlet that visitors may take away with them."

"Another good location for a marker is Ninth and Olive streets. It might show, on the southwest corner, the trees and the beautiful Colonial home of Col. James H. Lucas; on the northwest corner, where Vandervoort's now stands, the spire of the Unitarian Church, and in the distance, on the site of the Board of Education building at Ninth and Locust, the old Benton School.

"Somewhere on St. Charles street, probably at Ninth, should be a marker showing the old Santa Fe trail, which began back of Nugent's. The covered wagons that followed that trail were fitted out at Lindell's and other local stores, and most of them were built by our wagon companies."

"At the northwest corner of Seventh and the newly widened Market street might be shown the early Masonic Temple which stood there, at Seventeenth and Locust streets, the Scottish Rite Temple, and on First and Second streets the old Missouri lodge No. 1 and the St. Louis lodge No. 1.

"Battle of Fort San Carlos.
"Right around the corner from this hotel we should mark the site of the old Fort of San Carlos, which formed part of the city wall at Broadway and Walnut street. The round stone tower which was its center stood at Fourth and Walnut, and the walls of the fort extended about a half-block in each direction."

"In the Capitol at Jefferson City is a fine picture of the principal event which occurred in front of this fort—the attack of 1780. It was a small battle in which comparatively few took part, and yet, as it kept St. Louis from the English, who inspired the Indian attack, and with the George Rogers Clark expedition, saved the West for the Colonies, it was a really important battle of the Revolutionary War."

"A marker at the entrance to Eads Bridge might show the bridge in construction, of which many old pictures are preserved, or perhaps an unusual engineering feat at its completion in the hot summer. James B. Eads, finding the metal tubes to form a bridge was too long for installation, packed the whole thing in ice to shrink it."

"At Grand and Olive might be shown the toll gate at the beginning of the Central Plank road. In the old days they would set up a sawmill in the woods, lay the rough planks crosswise in the mud, set up a toll gate and charge everybody 25 cents to get on the 'road.'
Camp Jackson at Grand and Olive.
"Camp Jackson would be the most striking feature at Grand and Olive. The tents of the soldiers

R. F. C. REPORTS $134,201,000 LENT DURING JANUARY

Advances to Financial Concerns Totaled $74,554,- 000, and for Direct Relief, $50,016,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—How the Reconstruction Finance Corporation continued to advance credit and cash in January to the extent of $134,201,000 is shown in its monthly report to Congress.

That amount was authorized for loans to banks, insurance companies, agricultural credit corporations, railroads, for self-liquidating work relief projects, the home loan bank system, for crop production and for helping in the exportation of surplus agricultural commodities.

The loans to financial concerns amounted to $74,554,064. Of that, $2,815,500 was authorized to aid in the reorganization or liquidation of closed banks. To banks and trust companies went $46,915,256; to building and loan associations $4,285,838; to insurance companies $813,350; mortgage loan companies, $3,262,000; credit unions, $655; joint stock land banks, $670,000; direct loans to agricultural credit corporations, $101,232; redemptions to such corporations, $15,380,110; and to the Missouri Pacific Railroad, $3,000,000.

Likewise, the corporation authorized $50,016,116 in relief loans to the states, $9,140,100 for self-liquidating work relief projects, $231,802 to help in the exportation of agricultural surpluses and $1,700,000 for Federal Home Loan banks.

Total loans by states, including all classes, included: Arkansas, $2,487,089; California, $4,831,380; Illinois, $11,623,115; Iowa, $3,198,508, including agricultural credit corporation discounts; Kansas, $2,714,160, including agricultural discounts; Missouri, $9,629,758, including the $3,000,000 to the Missouri Pacific; New York, $9,450,500; Pennsylvania, $15,588,708, including $12,869,000 for relief, and Tennessee, $13,006,630.

League Council Submits Plan to End Leticia Controversy Proposal for Commission to Take Command of Colombia Troops, With Peruvians Withdrawing.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, March 2.—The League of Nations Council gave its approval yesterday to a proposal for intervention in the Leticia controversy between Peru and Colombia by an international commission acting under league auspices.

Colombia accepted immediately, but Peru's representative requested that he receive a postponement of decision for several days pending instructions from his Government.

The plan calls for sending a League commission to the scene of the trouble, where it will be given temporary command of the Colombian forces and Peru's troops will withdraw to their own territory.

Japan Buys More English Ships.
By the Associated Press.
LIVERPOOL, March 1.—The Japanese Government, which recently bought several old British passenger steamers, has purchased five more British vessels, it was learned today. They are the Benada, the Inalita, the Canadian Ranger, the Moeraki and the Waitimata. It was reported also that Italy had bought 12 ships this week, three of them British vessels.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in the standard of living that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice, or corruption, always fight for the rights of all parties, never oppress privileged classes and public enemies, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrongs; whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Differs With Dean Donham.

DEAN DONHAM does not believe in lowering of tariffs, though he apparently favors debt revision. Are they not along the same line of reasoning, namely, to restore higher prices and foreign markets for those products in which we have an advantage? True, if prohibitive tariffs are retained, most of our foreign investments, private and public, will have to be written off. This, of course, is a needless loss.

He states that high tariffs preserve stability in the face of collapse. Have they done so? Do they preserve stability for the cotton and wheat farmer, for the motor and shoe manufacturer? If we are to become a hermit nation, as he proposes, what is to become of the cotton farmers of the South, the tobacco planters, copper and oil industries, to mention only a few that depend on foreign markets? Will this create the labor shortage that he so devoutly desires?

He states that the appreciation of gold has brought us to bankruptcy. But has not gold appreciated because through high tariffs the debtor nations were prevented from liquidating their indebtedness vis-a-vis the creditor nations? The value of gold has been raised by the increased demand for it in such marginal debtor countries as Germany, Argentina, etc. The redundant supply of gold in France, United States, Holland and Switzerland does not prevent prices from falling in those nations as elsewhere.

We can follow him in seeing the necessity for higher prices. Who can't? But any tyro in economics can discern that prices must be raised internationally. Raising them by going off the gold standard as in Australia is the road to ruin. Dean Donham complains of confused thinking. I submit his speech as a most excellent example. Fortunately, we have in Mr. Roosevelt a man whom, according to Dean Donham, we should make a dictator. To judge by the development of policies, Mr. Roosevelt will attack deflation along the debtor nations—removal of barriers to world trade, revision of international debts, rigid adherence to the gold standard and a balanced budget.

HARVARD '19.

Dr. Porter's Critics.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE POST-DISPATCH: THAT there is no cessation of Japan war talk must prove most disturbing to those who would censor Dr. Porter. JOE CAMPBELL.

For Utility Rate Reductions.

THE Laclede Gas Light Co. now wants to buy the Missouri Industrial Gas Co. and put over another fat one on the people of St. Louis. They say they can't make any money if they were to cut the rates for the consumers, but still they earn a gross profit of 12 per cent or more at the present rates and have enough money in their sinking fund to buy out a $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 firm for no doubt a million dollars or less.

The Democratic party promised us a new deal, so why doesn't Gov. Park appoint a new Public Service Commission that will really serve the public? It should be composed of men who have red blood in their veins, men who will not take the excuse of the telephone, electric and gas companies that they can't raise their rates during good times and, therefore, should be allowed to continue to exploit the public now.

If we poor people were organized like the Judges of Missouri, we would get our gas, electric and telephone rates cut, and our salaries would stay on the same basis as during good times. It is not ethical to do anything that would hurt the large corporations or the well-paid Government employees, but the salaries of the laborer, white collar worker or salesman should be cut to the bone and made to like it. Can any Post-Dispatch reader tell me why?

DISGUSTED.

After Repeal.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE POST-DISPATCH: THE question of repeal is now up to the states. We shall see if they have enough nerve to back up their cry for repeal.

If they do vote wet, however, there will be another question to settle. Will we have saloons as in the pre-war days or shall liquor be sold at the grocery store? Many think it will be sold at the store.

Some argue that there will be no place to drink without bothering those not interested. Men should have a place to go and not be embarrassed by the opposite sex. Women and others come back with ideas that some women drink as much as men. Where will they drink if we have our old-fashioned saloons again? Mothers and wives say that they do not care to have their sons and husbands hanging around saloons to learn some new form of devilment. There are just a few points for both sides.

If we go down to the true facts, however, we should not stop at these petty arguments. We should think of the good repeal can do if we use it right. Many thousands of men will be put to work, booze racketeering will have to stop, those who drink will be able to do so without wondering if their eyesight will go, and last but not least, we will have fewer gang killings.

HARRY WILSON.

Hurst, Ill.

ST. LOUIS AND ITS UNEMPLOYED.

Now that the Supreme Court has approved the validity of the $4,000,000 bond issue, passed at last fall's election, plans are under way to spend it in such a way as to obtain a maximum amount of good, both from the standpoint of the city and of those in need of relief. In the discussions of last summer on the city's relief problem, two schools of thought appeared: One favored a bond issue for direct relief; the other advocated a bond issue whose proceeds would be paid out in the form of wages to the unemployed.

It was argued against the first proposal that it is unusual for St. Louis, or any other community, to embrace the dole as the sole means of relief; that the dole pauperizes the people, weakens their self-respect and gives the city nothing in return. Against the second, it was urged that relief in the form of work is too expensive; that the money would be used up within a few months, and that a new bond issue would then be necessary.

The outcome of the debate was a compromise. It was recognized that, if work relief alone were authorized, the sick and the aged would be unable to take advantage of it; also, if the dole system is to continue unabated, the city will become the mecca of floaters and professional hobos. So, of the $4,000,000, part is to be used for direct relief and part on a program of work relief now being formulated by the city administration.

In main outline, the program is as follows: Heads of municipal departments are to designate the projects on which workers are to be employed, and they have been directed to diversify the work so as to include various occupations. These projects are not to be a substitute for regular municipal activity, as provided for by budgetary provisions already made. No person shall be employed unless he or she is the responsible head of a family of not less than three; moreover, care will be taken to choose those families in the deepest distress. All those receiving work relief must be bona fide residents of St. Louis.

Wage rates will be on a par with the wage scale now paid by the city for similar work, and expenditure of work relief money is to be confined to wages. It is expected that supervision of the work will be handled by the regular supervisory forces of city departments. Preliminary estimates are that, of the $4,000,000, $1,500,000 will be spent for work relief, enough to employ 2000 to 2500 persons, and thus care for that number of families for a considerable time.

Perhaps there are flaws in the program, but we contend that any effort to provide honest pay for honest work is to be preferred to the dole. As to the relatively more expensive character of work relief, we believe careful administration will lessen the disparity considerably. It is to be emphasized that each job created will provide for a family of three already on relief rolls; that the choice of families will depend upon degree of distress, and that none of the fund is to go for anything but wages.

In the meantime, the city will be given a breathing spell in which to devise other means of providing work relief. For instance, E. J. Russell of the City Plan Commission announces upon his return from Washington that the pending Wagner amendment to the R. F. C. Act would make available to St. Louis between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 for public works. The amendment has been approved by the Senate and appears to have a good chance in the House. Altogether, it would set up a fund of two billion dollars, to be lent to states and cities for public work. Mr. Russell thinks St. Louis might apply its share to grade crossing elimination, extension of hospital facilities and so on. There are, of course, numerous ways for St. Louis to spend a large sum of money advantageously, apart from the boon such expenditure would be to the unemployed.

We have insisted from the beginning of the depression that it destroys the morale of the working people merely to hand them bread when they are willing and able to work. It is also true that under the system which is fast breaking down in all big cities, society has got nothing in return for its great relief outlay. Many able-bodied men who have zealously and unsuccessfully sought gainful employment for two years or longer are so shattered in morale that they are no longer fit to fill useful roles in society. The only cure is to put the people to work.

We look forward, therefore, with interest and hope to the St. Louis experiment of work relief, confident that, if wisely administered, it will do more than anything that has happened since 1929 to meet the tragic challenge of the depression.

GO TO THE BEE.

Man has always been advised by the poets and philosophers to study the bee, that exemplar of virtue, and the wise men are right. Here we are, bogged down in the worst depression since the Dark Ages, but the bee goes merrily on, collecting his tribute from the unprotesting flowers and storing the proceeds neatly in his waxen safety deposit vault. Nor is unrelenting industry the bee's outstanding trait. 'E's a first-class fighting man, too, and defends his person and possessions against all comers.

Wherefore, and our authority is J. F. Diemer, 80-year-old dean of Missouri beekeepers, we have before us, in bee-keeping, an industry that, if not depression proof, is weathering the storm. Dean Diemer explains: "You see, a hive of bees can't be mortgaged, for what would happen if the holder foreclosed? So the beekeeper has just one less obligation to carry." Foreclosing a mortgage on a beehive, one judges, would be about as unhappy a task as foreclosing a farm mortgage nowadays in Iowa or Michigan.

TRADING STAMPS.

The Missouri Legislature would be unwise to enact either of the anti-trading stamp bills now before it. One bill, proposing a tax of $1000 a year on concerns using stamps, coupons, certificates or similar devices, has been approved by the House Ways and Means Committee. The other, prohibiting them outright, is on the House calendar for passage. The first bill is for the same purpose as the second, as no concern could pay such a tax, particularly since for large firms a $1000 fee would be required for each department.

Stamps and coupons, redeemable in cash or goods, are a common device of merchants seeking to stimulate business. Their use may safely be left to individual initiative, and the public likewise may be left to make its own decisions on whether to buy from firms offering premiums or from those that do not. Use of such devices is, of course, an added item of overhead, like any other form of business stimulant. If it proves too costly to be borne, merchants will abandon it voluntarily, or the public will take its trade elsewhere if it finds higher prices are charged to cover the cost of premiums. Use of trading stamps is merely application to retail business of the cash discounts given by most wholesalers, which are viewed as entirely legitimate and not subject to legislative restriction. The Legislature would be interfering with a purely individual and harmless mercantile policy if it prohibited trading stamps.

THE GOVERNOR AND THE BAR BILL.

Gov. Park's announcement that he is for the State bar bill has greatly heartened the supporters of this important measure.

The Governor can, if he will, bring strength to the bill. After all, the opposition to it chiefly comes from unsocial quarters with which the new administration cannot afford to ally itself. Five Representatives from the counties in which the Governor has been a Circuit Judge voted against the bill in the House. The Governor's support of the measure could have the effect of reversing these and other votes, and we hope to see it have that effect.

There is no time to lose. Unfortunately, the Senate Judiciary Committee failed to report the bill out at its meeting this week. If no action is taken until the next regular meeting, it may prove difficult to get action on the Senate bill in time for another vote in the House. A special meeting to report on the State bar bill would greatly expedite matters, and the Governor can readily bring it about.

Still another reason among those given by members of the St. Louis delegation for voting against this proposed reform has fallen by the way. It is the explanation of Representative O'Brien of the Fourth District, who said he opposed the bill because "all the labor unions were against it."

Organized labor in Missouri, it develops, has taken no such stand. Speaking for the Missouri Joint Labor Legislative Committee, of which he is vice-chairman, D. W. Gramling has announced at Jefferson City that his committee has received no instructions regarding the bill. His personal opinion, Mr. Gramling added, is that the proposed law is desirable.

The other day we showed how foundationless was the statement of another member of the St. Louis delegation who said the bill would require young lawyers "to go back to school for a couple of years." The "opposition of organized labor" is in the same category.

As a matter of fact, the sole argument against the bill is that it would give the legal profession control over its members, which is exactly what it has done in the states which have adopted this means of protecting themselves against unprofessional and unsocial practices. It is folly to say that society can discipline the profession. It has proved itself unable to do so, with the result that the lawyer, licensed by the State, has in some instances become the most powerful of all those public enemies against which society everywhere has been compelled to take up arms.

Pass the State bar bill!

And that old copybook maxim, "Honesty is the best policy," seems about to stage a comeback.

CLIPPING THAT '91-BUSHEL TAG.

The House has passed a bill to reduce automobile registration fees which, it is calculated, will cut the revenue approximately $3,000,000 a year. Party leaders opposed the measure, the Governor has expressed the hope the Senate will kill it, and the Highway Department lobbied, by gesture, against it with its announcement last week that a letting in road contracts in the amount of some $3,000,000, scheduled for March 4, would be called off if the bill passed.

The House has, we believe, done a good job in passing this bill. By its terms, which change the system of fixing license fees from a horse-power basis to one of weight, only the lighter cars in the low-price field will be affected. The cars in the middle and high brackets will pay as before.

Fair enough. The low-priced cars have been taxed excessively and out of proportion. And a word for the actuaries who have figured out the loss of revenue: With all respect for their mathematics, we suggest to them that they ponder the loss of revenue from the low-priced car field if the registration fee is not reduced. We do not pretend to know what it will be, and they don't know, but giving statistics an afternoon off and putting common sense on the job, we are pretty likely to hear that loss in revenue, unless registration fees are reduced, will be plenty.

Ninety-one bushels of corn, we again submit, is too big a price for a set of plates for any one of the famous three. The Senate ought to put this bill on the Governor's desk and the Governor ought to sign it.

We'd be willing to wager, too, that Samuel Insull Sr. is cordially in favor of old-age pensions.

MR. GREEN STOOFS TO ABSURDITY.

It is, of course, disappointing to William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, that Mr. Roosevelt did not go to him for advice on who should be the next Secretary of Labor. But Mr. Green should not permit his chagrin to betray him into absurdity. His statement on the appointment of Miss Perkins is certainly in that category. He says the Secretary of Labor should be "representative of labor, one who understands labor, labor's problems, labor's psychology, collective bargaining, industrial relations and one who enjoys the confidence of labor." He adds that Miss Perkins does not meet these qualifications and that "labor can never become reconciled to the selection made."

It is false to say that Miss Perkins does not meet these qualifications. She has been interested in labor for more than 20 years in the most active way. New York State is noted among American commonwealths for its advanced legislation in behalf of the worker, and Miss Perkins is one of those responsible for putting it on the statute books. At present, she holds a position in New York State analogous to the position of Secretary of Labor for the nation. She enjoys the confidence of ex-Gov. Smith and Mr. Roosevelt, who have known her and her work and her capabilities for many years, and who have repeatedly appointed her to office.

Mr. Green pontificates as the spokesman for labor. He is actually the spokesman for some 2,500,000 out of the nation's 40,000,000 workers. He is a reactionary, an official whose position on labor questions, such as his long opposition to the principle of unemployment insurance, has laid his own seal for labor open to question. What kind of Secretary of Labor would he have? Another Davis? A second Doak?

Gazing into the crystal ball, we seem to see other officers of the National City Bank and its affiliate, the National City Co., trekking along after Messrs. Mitchell and Baker on the well-known way out.

BAD NEWS IN RAT ALLEY.

Failure of an Economic Dictatorship

Widespread attempt of Government to regulate trade and industry in sixteenth century Spain ended in disaster; plans to fix prices, like our Farm Board, satisfied no one; high tariffs also were unsuccessful; sales tax destroyed business of country; effort to produce prosperity by law resulted in retarding the nation's development.

By Roland G. Usher, Professor of History, Washington University.

THERE are few subjects to which statesmen have given more attention than to the promotion of trade and industry. Our interest in that topic is not new. In the Middle Ages and in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, the general idea was that most could be accomplished by regulating up and down, and as a result raised the farmer should be assured always of a fair return. The result was to discourage agriculture, the farmers feeling that the Government price was too low. The public claimed it was too high, so nobody was satisfied. As in our own experience lately, governmental interference failed to keep the price down in times of scarcity and wholly failed to keep it up in times of plenty.

In no country was the dictatorial interference of the Government in trade and industry more extended or more persistent than in sixteenth century Spain. In none were the results more disastrous. Altamira, the most recent great Spanish historian, declares that this governmental dictatorship contributed largely to the decadence of Spain in later centuries, and completed the work already begun by the demoralization of the country by the vast wealth brought from America.

The Government attempted to encourage and develop trade and industry by concentrating it in a few places; the domestic trade at Medina del Campo and later at Burgos; the Mediterranean trade at Barcelona; and the foreign and American trade at Seville and later at Cadiz. These became the exchange centers, with elaborate commercial and banking facilities, largely organized by the state or by chambers of commerce under its direction.

In a very real sense, the Government held the commercial and banking interests in the hollow of its hand, and gave both constant direction and control. Industry was regulated through craft guilds, one of each trade in each city or town, themselves with dictatorial powers over prices, labor and wages, and each composed of employers and workmen, the latter having always an effective veto on any action taken.

The result was a series of dictatorships, one above another, the Government on top, constantly directing and interfering with all. Agriculture and the farmer alone were unorganized. The Middle Ages had experienced control of the food supply by farmers and by guilds in towns, and had decided that foods of all kinds, beer, ale, but not wines, should never be permitted to control their own prices or regulate the supply and sale. Agriculture and the farmer alone were unorganized. Society only in recent years is beginning to look with tolerance on farm and dairy combines.

The Spanish Kings noted the farmer's condition and undertook elaborate arrangements to aid him. Government granaries stored as much of the crop each year as did not seem required to maintain the price in good years, then in lean years to depress it by releasing the grain. This was fair to all, they felt.

Price-fixing was tried on a great scale. A Government board, much like our recent Farm Board, fixed a maximum price in bad years and a minimum price in good, bought up grain when too plentiful, so that the farmer should be assured always of a fair return. The result was to discourage agriculture, the farmers feeling that the Government price was too low. The public claimed it was too high, so nobody was satisfied. As in our own experience lately, governmental interference failed to keep the price down in times of scarcity and wholly failed to keep it up in times of plenty.

The interests of the consumer were thoroughly appreciated by the Spanish rulers, who did see that the bulk of the population were neither laborers nor employers, but in every product by their own were consumers. To take care of everyone's true interests as a consumer, the Government attempted price-fixing of all commodities on a grand scale. It regulated the farmer; it would regulate industry; nobody should rob anyone else with high prices. No employer should rob his workmen with low wages; no workmen rob their employers with high wages; neither should rob the public with high prices.

By centralizing the sale of food and goods in localities and for the nation at large, by controlling merchants, banks and farmers, agriculture and industry could be promoted, so one could take unfair advantage of another, everybody would be happy, everybody would become rich. Economists call the system mercantilism, but today a new name has been coined for this old, old idea—state socialism.

Having decided to restrain the farmers with one hand and to aid them with the other, to regulate industry and fix prices, the Government then tried to assist industry. High protective tariffs were laid on imports to encourage manufacture in Spain. Free importation was allowed of goods which were not made in Spain or which the Government thought better not manufactured there. The jewelry and fabric trades were forbidden to use gold and silver, however, because they wasted the supply of money. Both trades were badly crippled.

A curious creature appeared in Spain, as elsewhere, in the sixteenth century—the middleman, or wholesaler, who bought from the producer in order to sell again to the retailer, and who actually meant to carry goods from one place to another and sell them where he could get the best price. Having failed to stop this wicked and nefarious business by hanging a few offenders, the Government attempted to eliminate the middleman. The most curious case was the requirement that no innkeeper should buy food; his guests should buy their own food in the market and then pay him to cook it for them.

Taxation played its part in the regulation

Cheap Skulduggery

From the Philadelphia Record.

DISGUSTING revelations mark the testimony taken by the Senate Banking Committee in its probe of Wall Street.

Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the board of the National City Bank, admits he evaded payment of income taxes in 1929 by selling stock in his own bank to a relative at a loss of nearly $2,800,000. He marked the loss down in his income tax report, and later bought the stock back.

Taxpayers will be interested in recalling that $23,000,000 of their money was spent in the occupation of Haiti in order to enforce a dubious claim of Mitchell's bank against the Government of that Republic. That more than 100 American lives and $6,000,000 were spent on a similar task in Nicaragua for Mitchell's confederates in Wall Street. And that American influence has helped to keep a tyrannical dictator in Cuba against the will of its people because he "plays nice" with American sugar investors, including the National City Co.

After this revelation of cheap skulduggery, American taxpayers may be less willing to spend blood and money in running Wall Street's errands abroad.

of the nation. The great money-getter was sales tax of 10 per cent on all goods. Before they levied every time the goods changed hands, and as a result raised the price 10 per cent each time. It tended to destroy all national trade and to limit business to its own locality. Goods commonly passed through a good many hands before they reached the consumer. By the time goods made or grown in Southern Spain reached the North, the price had become so high that no one wanted them at all.

The Government, and the people, too, mistakenly supposed that this was of great advantage to the local farmer or merchant, and prevented unfair competition from outside, but it certainly destroyed Spanish business and stood in the way of the development of the nation.

Salt and tobacco were Government monopolies, and the price was put very high to produce revenue for the treasury. Excise taxes on meat, wine, olive oil and vinegar were high and raised the cost of living. To avoid these taxes, smuggling and bootlegging became part of the nation's life.

The most extraordinary attempts were made to limit by law extravagance in dress in conduct and in diet. Modest dress was required of men and women, and the law described and defined its fashion. The cost of clothes was prescribed in accordance with rank. No gold or silver buttons were permitted. The expense of the table was regulated, and not more than four dishes of meat were allowed anyone at one meal. Coaches multiplied, and the fathers of the state, holding them expensive, required all men of rank to ride horseback. The price of food and the information to the courts about one another's breach of these laws made life one vast annoyance until they were abandoned.

The net result of all this attempt to produce prosperity by regulation was to retard agricultural and industrial development. While all other nations tried state regulation at this same time, few attempted such elaborate control and in few, therefore, were the results so serious. The modern regime of free competition has not been without its faults, but it has certainly produced a development of agriculture and industry never known before in history.

COMMUNITY FUND REACHES $110,000 AFTER FIRST WEEK

Second Report Made by Solicitors in $600,000 Campaign for Character-Building Agencies.

Subscriptions to the Community Fund's $600,000 campaign for character-building agencies now amount to $110,000, it was announced today at the second report meeting of solicitors in the campaign, held at Hotel Jefferson.

The amount announced previously was $81,500. The campaign opened a week ago.

Dwight F. Davis, former Secretary of War and Governor-General of the Philippines, told workers at today's meeting their campaign might be compared with the counter-offensive needed in war.

"Relief work," he said, "is absolutely essential. It corresponds to holding the line. The enemy goes behind it and saps the morale of your young people, you are not holding your own; you are losing the battle."

There are those, he said, who believe character-building activities should be dropped for two or three years, and the money spent for relief of destitution. But this, Davis said, would mean a loss not only of two or three years, but of a whole generation which would be permitted to go by without the formative influences that should have assisted it in a dangerous period.

$5000 Gifts Announced. Eight of the larger subscriptions were made public by Samuel Plant, chairman of the special gifts division, whose own gift of $5000 had been announced previously. These were:

$500—Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Pfleger and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Nims.

$1000—Mr. and Mrs. James T. Fettes.

$1000—Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Wallace, The Cupples Co., Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Sudholt, Bert H. Lang and Mrs. Frederick E. Woodruff.

An radio talks yesterday three speakers urged support of the campaign to counteract the devastating effects of the depression on young people who have left school but have been unable to find a place in industry.

Prof. Frank J. Bruno, head of the Washington University department of social work, estimated that of all those who were graduated last spring from grade schools, high schools and colleges not more than one in every four or five has been able to find employment. Not more than half of those who left school in the two previous years, he thought, found work within a year of their graduation.

"No previous recession in history," he declared, "has so completely paralyzed their ambitions, or denied them in anything like the same degree the opportunity to try themselves out against the demands of the world's work."

Ex-Mayor T. J. Speaks. Former Mayor Henry Kiel said the country is threatened with the prospect of a "lost generation." Food and shelter, he said, have been provided for those who are unemployed. What he asked of the generation now entering on manhood and womanhood? "If St. Louis ignores them now," he said, "there will be heavy price to pay later in delinquency, crime and social misfits."

The Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt spoke of the danger of increased crime and delinquency if character-building activities are neglected. "The most pitiful individuals in our social order," he said, "are young men and women without chance. Let's change the whole attitude in this city and be in reality a miracle city, giving our boys and girls a chance."

BISHOP SCARLETT DEPLORES 'SCANDALS IN HIGH PLACES'

Bishop Coadjutor William Scarlett, in his Lenten address at Christ Church Cathedral yesterday, deplored the "scandals" of the present, both for personal shortcomings and for the shortcomings of the society in which we live, in all its complex relationships.

Bishop Scarlett said that character seemed to be at a low ebb at present. "The scandals," he said, "which have shocked us and touched men in high positions in whom people have had confidence, seem to expose the fact that it is a simple ethical principle, a blurring of the distinction between right and wrong, which is at the bottom of a good deal of our trouble today."

"One of our college presidents the other day said that the worst of character was that of the frozen character, and if we hoped that prosperity would be restored by other means than the restoration of human character, we were doomed to disappointment."

"We need day some absolute standard against which we can judge the standards of our day—some absolute ideal to save us from some loyalties and lesser achievements."

COMMUNITY FUND REACHES $110,000 AFTER FIRST WEEK

Second Report Made by Solicitors in $600,000 Campaign for Character-Building Agencies.

Subscriptions to the Community Fund's $600,000 campaign for character-building agencies now amount to $110,000, it was announced today at the second report meeting of solicitors in the campaign, held at Hotel Jefferson.

The amount announced previously was $51,500. The campaign opened a week ago.

Dwight F. Davis, former Secretary of War and Governor-General of the Philippines, told workers at today's meeting that the campaign might be compared with the campaign of the Civil War.

"Relief work," he said, "is absolutely essential. It corresponds to holding the line. But if while you are holding the line, the enemy goes behind it and saps the morale of your young people, you are not holding your own; you are losing the battle."

There are those, he said, who believe character-building activities should be dropped for two or three years, and the money spent for relief of destitution. But this, Davis said, would mean a loss not only of two or three years, but of a whole generation which would be permitted to go by without the formative influences that should have assisted it in a dangerous period.

$5000 Gifts Announced. Eight of the larger subscriptions were made public by Samuel Plant, chairman of the special gifts division, whose own gift of $5000 had been announced previously. These were:

$5000—Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Pflieger and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Nims.
$1500—Mr. and Mrs. James T. Tetlow.

$1000—Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Wallace, The Cupples Co. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Sudholt, Bert H. Lang and Mrs. Frederick E. Woodruff.

A radio talks yesterday three speakers urged support of the campaign to counteract the devastating effects of the depression on young people who have left school but have been unable to find a place in the world's work.

Prof. Frank J. Bruno, head of the Washington University department of social work, estimated that of all those who were graduated last year from grade schools, high schools and colleges not more than one in every four or five has been able to find employment. Not more than half of those who left school in the two previous years, he thought, found work within a year of their graduation.

"No previous recession in history," he declared, "ever rendered youth so completely incapable of utilizing their ambitions, or denied them in anything like the same degree the opportunity to try themselves out against the demands of the world's work."

Ex-Mayor Speaks. Former Mayor Henry Kiel said the country is threatened with the prospect of a "lost generation." Food and shelter, he said, have been provided for those in need, but what he asked, of the generation now entering on manhood and womanhood? "If St. Louis ignores them now," he said, "there will be a heavy price to pay later in delinquency, crime and social misbehavior."

The Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt spoke of the danger of increased crime and delinquency if character-building activities are neglected. "The most pitiful individuals in our social order," he said, "are young men and women without a future. Let us change the whole attitude in this city and be in reality a miracle city, giving our boys and girls a chance."

Bishop Scarlett Deplores 'Scandals in High Places.' Bishop Coadjutor William Scarlett, in his Lenten address at Christ Church Cathedral yesterday, deplored the fact that there was need for repentance both for individual and corporate—both for personal shortcomings and for the shortcomings of the society in which we live, in all its complex relationships.

Bishop Scarlett said that character seemed to be at a low ebb at present. "The scandals," he said, "which have shocked us and touched men in high positions in whom people have had confidence, seem to expose the fact that it is a simple lack of honesty, a lack of simple ethical principles, a blurring of the distinction between right and wrong, which is at the bottom of a good deal of our trouble today."

Oldest U. S. Twins 92 Years Old. MONTGOMERY, Mo., March 2.—John J. Dixon and W. B. Dixon, who won a contest more than a year ago as the oldest twins in the United States, celebrated their ninety-second birthday yesterday. They were born near Mineola, this country, March 1, 1841. They were Confederate soldiers under Gen. Marmaduke until capture of his forces at Kansas City.

NEW HEAD OF AMHERST TELLS OF CHANGES

Stanley King Says Most Rules Are Abolished to Make College 'More Livable.'

Stanley King, business-man president of Amherst College, arrived in St. Louis today on a trip to tell schoolboys and alumni how he is changing Amherst in his first year as its head. He has much to say for he is making many changes, not in courses and requirements, but in atmosphere and social customs.

At the John Burroughs School he told the pupils: "We have abolished virtually all the rules at Amherst and are trying to make it a more livable place in which we can teach and study, and play and sing; where we can get the students just to live, to live as they are, but we've done the there has been only one case of disciplining."

What King is trying to do at his college merely reflects his own personality. He is approachable, cordial and dignified at one time. He regards education as the "greatest of adventures." He attempts to make the student see this advantage.

Getting Acquainted With Students. "I call myself a maverick among college presidents—in from beyond the range," he said. "But I'm having more fun than I ever did in business. It is the most exciting job in the world for a mature man to deal with young men."

For him "dealing" with young men does not mean in the fashion in which schoolmasters often "deal" with their pupils. "I'm trying to get to know all the students—there are only 700—and by the end of the year I think I will be acquainted with them all. Right now I'm working with the seniors and the freshmen. There is no freshmen dean at Amherst, I've taken over that job myself."

Judges for the contest are Just David E. Blair, Judge Albert D. Norton and J. W. Jamison.

A pageant, entitled "The Family Album," will be given tomorrow night by the Ladies' Guild at the Boyman Methodist Episcopal Church, Atholene and Carter avenues. More than 100 persons will take part. A woman's cape, 125 years old, will be worn by one of the performers, as will an infant's dress, 60 years old.

Mrs. Henry E. Klosterman 6544 Clayton road and her daughter, Miss Celeste Klosterman have returned from Miami Beach Fla., where they spent a month.

Miss Rose M. Brady 5814 Maple avenue is in New Orleans for a visit. She will visit in Gulfport, Biloxi and Pass Christian Miss. before returning home.

VALIDITY OF ZONING LAW AMENDMENT ATTACKED. Company Seeking to Build Filling Station at Kingsbury and Skinker Roads Asks for Injunction.

Suit to enjoin the city from interfering with the construction of a gasoline station on the northeast corner of Skinker boulevard and Kingsbury avenues was filed in Federal Court yesterday by the Geneva Investment Co.

The suit attacks the constitutionality of a 1930 amendment to the zoning law of 1926. Charging that the amendment, restricting the use of the lot to residential purposes, caused it to suffer damage of $40,000, the company alleges that it has been deprived of property without due process of law. Setting out that two gasoline stations are situated near its lot, the company contends also that the amendment did not preserve equal rights guaranteed by the Constitution.

In February, 1931, Luke Hart, an attorney, 6174 Kingsbury avenue, sought to enjoin Walter F. Sheehan, as officer of the corner, from erecting a filling station there. The investment company says it bought the corner in 1926, intending to improve it for commercial purposes then sell it. J. A. Sheehan is listed as vice-president of the company. Walter Sheehan is the new Public Administrator.

ARCHBISHOP GLENNON SPEAKS. Archbishop Glennon delivered the Ash Wednesday sermon yesterday at the Old Cathedral, on Walnut street between Second and Third streets.

He told a capacity audience that the only way out of the economic distress was for the world to follow Christ's teachings. He urged the audience to give alms to the poor.

PHILLIP M. CHANCELLOR, HEIR TO FORTUNE, TO WED IN LONDON. By the Associated Press.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., March 2.—Philip Mattiessen Chancellor, heir to millions, will marry Miss Eliza Tennant of Vienna and Berlin Saturday at St. George's Chapel, London. It was announced here yesterday by his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Philip S. Chancellor of Montecito. The parents said the engagement was disclosed to them by their son on a visit here at Christmas.

A former marriage of the young heir was annulled. He eloped to Carson City, Nev., in 1927 with Helen Carroll Baines of Philadelphia, before his twentieth birthday. Dr. Chancellor, a retired physician, voluntarily established a $125,000 trust fund for Miss Baines at the time of the annulment and paid the attorney's fees.

Young Chancellor in 1929 joined a 13-month scientific expedition to the South Seas and Australia, after he came into an estate estimated at $2,000,000, inherited from his grandfather, the late F. N. Mattiessen, since magnate of La-Salle, Ill.

SARA TEASDALE LEAVES INCOME TO FORMER HUSBAND

$5000 Bequest to Daughter of Vachel Lindsay—Property to Vachel Lindsay—Property to Vachel Lindsay.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The will of Sara Teasdale, lyric poet and former St. Louisan, was filed yesterday. Miss Teasdale died Jan. 29 in her fifth avenue apartment. A coroner's verdict ascribed her death to accidental submersion in a bathtub.

A bequest of $5000 is made to Miss Susan Doniphan Lindsay of Oakland, Cal., daughter of the late Vachel Lindsay, Illinois poet. One-third of Miss Teasdale's Missouri real estate holdings is divided between two nephews, David G. Teasdale of Clayton, Mo., and Rudolf S. Teasdale of St. Louis. Another one-third of the same property is divided among three nephews, Willard W. and John V. Teasdale of St. Louis and Kenneth Teasdale of University City, Mo., and a niece, Frances M. Teasdale of St. Louis.

The remainder of the property is left in trust, three-fifths of the income to go to Miss Teasdale's former husband, Ernest B. Flisner, former St. Louis exporter, and two-fifths to Margaret Cornelia Conklin, a friend of the poet. After their deaths, Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass., is to receive the remaining property. An immediate bequest of 100 books from the poet's library is also left to Wellesley.

DEATH OF JESUIT BROTHER. Francis Skowronski of St. Louis U. Succumbs to Stomach Trouble. Brother Francis Skowronski, S. J., of St. Louis University, died at St. Mary's Hospital yesterday of a stomach disease. He was 51 years old and had been ill eight days. A native of Poland, he entered the Jesuit order in 1907 at Florissant, and for 16 years was attached to Campion High School at Prairie du Chien, Wis. He had been at St. Louis University the last three years.

Funeral services will be held at 8:45 o'clock tomorrow morning at St. Francis Xavier (College) Church with interment in the Jesuit Cemetery at Florissant.

LOUIS LATZER'S WIDOW DIES AT HIGHLAND, ILL. 80 Years Old—Husband Made Fortune as Founder of Pet Milk Co.

Mrs. Eliza Luehm Latzer, widow of Louis Latzer, the Illinois farmer who built up a fortune by developing a successful process for condensing milk, died of heart disease yesterday at her home near Highland in Madison County. She was 80 years old.

Mrs. Latzer had survived her husband by nine years. Since his death in March, 1924, she has maintained her residence in the old family home not far from the place of the Pet Milk Co., which Mr. Latzer founded and from which he drew his fortune.

The daughter of a Swiss immigrant, Mrs. Latzer was born near Highland. She married Mr. Latzer in December, 1874. It was nine years later that John Meyenberg interested her husband in his plan for preserving milk.

Formation of Company. The Helvetia Milk Condensing Co., out of which grew the pet concern, was formed with Latzer, Meyenberg and John Wild as its principal investors. Then began a dispiriting fight to eliminate from milk the bacilli that made it sour.

Latzer, who had been a student at McKendree College and at the University of Illinois, began an intensive study of chemistry and eventually worked out the process which is still in use. Meanwhile, however, the company had fallen into hard times. Stock shares, with a par value of $100, had dropped to $12 and were bartered by the milk company employees to tradepeople for their needs. At Latzer's death the stock was worth $20,000 a share.

During the long fight to develop a successful process, Meyenberg sold out his stock to his associates. Wild severed his connection with the company in 1907, after the huge business it gained during the Spanish-American War had continued to grow. He was then a millionaire.

During the long fight to develop a successful process, Meyenberg sold out his stock to his associates. Wild severed his connection with

Left Estate of $2,000,000. Latzer remained as head of the company. When he died he left an estate of $2,898,000. He left no will and the estate was divided among his widow and six children, who already had been the recipients of large shares of his fortune. In addition to gifts to his family, his philanthropies were said to have totaled about $2,000,000.

Three years after Mr. Latzer's death his widow and children set aside $100,000 from his estate to be used in establishing in Highland the Louis Latzer Memorial Library. To erect the building and equip it with 4000 volumes, $75,000 was expended. The rest of the gift was set up as a trust fund to maintain the library.

Mrs. Latzer is survived by two sons, John A. and Robert L. of St. Louis, and four daughters, Miss Alice of Highland; Mrs. F. J. Gilloon, who resides in California; Mrs. M. C. Gamble of Peoria, Ill., and Mrs. A. F. Kaefer of Highland.

COLORADO BISHOP TO PREACH. Will Speak at Christ Church Next Week. Bishop Irving P. Johnson of Colorado will be the speaker at next week's noonday services at Christ Church Cathedral.

He also will conduct a preaching mission at the Church of St. Michael and St. George, Wydown boulevard and Ellenwood avenue.

ARTHUR HIND NOTED STAMP

COLLECTOR, DIES IN FLORIDA

Once Outbid King of England for Specimens; Valued His Aggregation at More Than $1,000,000.

By the Associated Press
UTICA, N. Y., March 2.—Arthur Hind, 77 years old, who owned one of the most complete stamp collections in the world and won international notice on one occasion by outbidding the King of England for a rare 20-shilling Niger coast stamp, died yesterday in Miami, Fla.

Hind came to this country from England and settled in Clark Mills, a Utica suburb, 35 years ago. His stamps had been exhibited in many cities in this country and in Europe. Once when a part of them was on exhibition in Berlin, Germany, they were insured by Lloyd's for $1,000,000, and that did not cover the value of the stamps, the owner said.

Hind's collection includes many specimens of which no duplicates are known to exist. One of these is a British Guiana one-cent dated 1856 for which Hind paid $32,500 at auction in Paris.

Other constructive steps have also been taken. Confidence has been restored in such measure that the flight of capital has not been

The return of capital to Germany is largely responsible for the fact that prices of German loans have almost doubled. Germany, by virtue of the standstill arrangements and a more elastic economic system, has remained on gold, and this has helped her recovery, for sterling debts have been cut down by one-third on account of exchange heavily reduced, and unemployment is greater than it has ever been.

Her huge stocks of gold are sterile; indeed the gold standard as a her as with other countries. The fact that America has the largest

SENATORS REPORT MUNICIPAL BOND MORATORIUM BILL

Despite Judiciary Committee Action, However, Vote This Session on Measure Is Doubtful.

HOUSE WORKING ON A SIMILAR PLAN

Mayor Murphy of Detroit Principal Advocate of Step He Urges to Prevent Default.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Liberalized so as to include all cities, the McLeod-Norris bill for a moratorium on municipal bonds was approved today by the Senate Judiciary Committee, but the prospects for senatorial action on it were considered dim.

As the bill came to the committee, it provided for a two-year moratorium on obligations of cities of $50,000 and up, if their indebtedness was $1,000,000 or more. This provision was removed by the committee.

Senators then voted 6 to 4 to report the bill favorably, although several notified Chairman Norris that in voting to report it, they would oppose it on the floor.

Norris told newspaper men after the committee's session that he would report the bill to the Senate tomorrow but felt that action before adjournment at noon Saturday was improbable.

Senate rules require unanimous consent to take it up, he explained, adding two or three committee members, whose names he declined to divulge, would object to considering it.

"A Mathematical Chance." Should the House pass a similar bill, which its Judiciary Committee approved yesterday, Norris said there was a "mathematical chance the Senate might be induced to take up the measure and the bill put through."

Mayor Murphy was the chief witness before each committee. Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, asked Murphy why action within the next few hours was necessary, rather than waiting until the coming special session.

Murphy replied that budgetary requirements made immediate action necessary, adding "before help comes that way, there will be a large number of defaults," by the cities on their bonds.

When Vandenberg asked if Detroit had "any default in sight," Murphy said, "we might get through the next six weeks, but it is doubtful."

He told Senator Austin (Rep.), Vermont, that the city's sinking fund for obligations had been met regularly, but now was exhausted and that tax delinquencies had increased from 9 per cent four years ago to 36 per cent for the current fiscal year.

$363,000,000 in Bonds. He said Detroit's bonds outstanding totaled about $363,000,000, with interest and principal payments due yearly ranging from $26,000,000 to $32,000,000, over the next four years, after which they are due to fall.

The tax levy for 1933 was estimated at $72,000,000, Murphy continued, but about 36 per cent would be delinquent and "we can't make up that delinquency any more, either by borrowing or bonds."

"This requires nothing from the Government, not a thin dime," Murphy continued. "It just gives a respite, a holiday in which to reorganize."

Aside from falling tax collections, Murphy said, the cities were hard pressed for relief needs, adding that the small funds available for each charity case weekly "are disgraceful and ought never to have been permitted."

FAVORS NEW DISTRIBUTION OF GASOLINE TAX REVENUE

Proposal to Divide It Among Cities, Counties and State.

The city council of East St. Louis yesterday passed a resolution favoring amendments to the State three-cent gasoline tax bill by which the funds raised by this means would be distributed equally among the State, counties and cities.

The amendments are sponsored by the Illinois Municipal League and are pending before the General Assembly. Under the present law the cities profit from the gasoline tax only when the State uses the money to pay part of the paving cost of State-aid routes within the city limits.

If the amendments are approved by the General Assembly, the State Department of Public Works will receive one-third for paving State-aid routes, the counties one-third for county and State-aid road construction and the cities one-third for street construction approved by the State.

PRESBYTERIANS CUT EXPENSES OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Will Meet in Columbus Instead of Ft. Worth; Session Shortened Two Days.

PHILADELPHIA, March 2.—Seeking to effect economies, the General Council of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. (north-eastern) yesterday voted to hold this year's General Assembly at Columbus, O., instead of at Fort Worth, Tex. The council also decided that the assembly, which will meet Thursday, May 25, will close the following Monday, two days earlier than usual.

The committee voted to abolish the Presbyterian Magazine, only official publication of the church. J. William Smith, Philadelphia, chairman of the budget and finance committee, reported that the various official boards of the church had reduced overhead expenses $600,000 during the year, making a two-year economy in expenditures of $2,000,000.

SALES TAX IN ILLINOIS HOUSE

By the Associated Press. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 2.—The sales tax bills received a 19-to-14 favorable vote in the House Judiciary Committee yesterday and were reported to the floor with the recommendation that they be passed.

The bills, which have been adopted by the Senate, were sent to second reading by the committee with the explanation that any proposed amendments could be threshed out on the floor.

STOP WORRYING ABOUT RECLAIMED OIL

The simple way to end forever all worry about reclaimed oil and oil substitution is to buy all your motor oil at Standard Stations. There you get what you pay for. Standard is the synonym for integrity throughout the motoring world.

CHOOSE AN OIL THAT'S ALWAYS THE SAME

Standard Motor Oils never vary in quality. Buy it in St. Louis, St. Joseph or Chicago, Polarine is always Polarine.

BUY WHERE YOU GET SERVICE

Proper oil service will make your car last longer. Standard Servicemen know how to give it. They check your oil accurately, know what grade you should use for different weathers and driving conditions, and don't try to sell you oil if you don't need it. They cheerfully give you the free services you need on the road.

YOUR CHOICE OF 3 GRADES...ALL GOOD

Standard Motor Oil is the easiest to find

...There's always a reliable
Standard Station near at hand

A MOTOR that uses only one brand of motor oil lasts longer than the one that uses many oils. The more different oils you use, the greater the likelihood that some of them will be poor. For this reason, the best plan is to find the motor oil that suits your motor best and stick to it. To do this you must pick a motor oil that is easy to find wherever you may be. Choose Standard. Standard Motor Oils are sold through thousands of service stations and dealers. No matter where you are—at home or on the road—there is always a reliable Standard Station nearby where you can get the particular Standard brand you prefer.

Elsie Robinson on Thinking

LISTEN, WORLD!

by Elsie Robinson

Date to Think About Your World!

YOU'RE bored, you say. Everything's dull. Can't afford to go anywhere. If you could only do something different!

But you CAN do something different!

YOU CAN TAKE PART IN THE MOST EXCITING SHOW THAT HAS EVER BEEN PULLED OFF IN HUMAN HISTORY!

All around you, your world is falling to pieces. No power on earth can put these pieces together again into the picture you once knew. For this isn't just a temporary muddle caused by someone's miscalculation. It's a whole-sale smash-up of the whole social order caused by new conditions, which have come to stay.

How much do you know about that smash-up? How much have you thought about those new conditions?

Bored, you say. Longing for some excitement. Wish you could do something different.

THEN GET BUSY AND DO SOMETHING DIFFERENT! GET BUSY AND THINK!

Think about your world. What's going to happen to your world? What sort of a world will it be 10 years, even five years, from now?

Will we still have the same form of marriage which we have now?

Remember, marriage forms change with our social and religious attitudes; with our economic adjustments. In 1933 an American husband could well away his wife's unborn child. Today women have "equal rights"; have jobs, and votes. Thousands of working wives are supporting unemployed husbands. Wives, in some states, pay alimony. What will that do to marriage? What will that do to divorce?

Will we come to regard divorce as a purely personal problem; allow couples to separate at the desire of either party, but increase their responsibility toward their children?

Will children become actually the wards of the State?

(Do you realize that, in theory, your child is NOW the ward of the State? Do you realize that the State has rights, superior to yours, over your child NOW?)

Will babies shortly be cared for in community nurseries by highly trained specialists?

Will there cease to be that tragic thing, "an illegitimate child"?

Will "home" become a mere set of sleeping quarters, with all other family activities served by outside agencies and the family kitchen and dining room cease to exist, along with the family nursery?

(Does the idea shock you? Stop and think how much the home has already changed since your mother's youth? How much of YOUR family life centers in YOUR home today? How much CAN center there?)

Then, as to work—with housework dwindling to the vanishing point; with Big Business taking over grandma's chores—what will happen to wives?

Will all wives be expected to work outside the home?

Will working hours grow less and less, until all labor is done by a few enormous machines which displace hundreds of thousands of workers?

And what about the millions of other workers who can't be fitted into the machine program? Will they live on a dole?

"Send them out to the wide open spaces!"

(But suppose they don't want to go. Country life, to most city dwellers, means torturing boredom. They are COMPELLED to leave the bright lights? And if they're compelled, what becomes of democracy?)

Will democracy cease? Will we be forced to accept a dictator? Will...

But why go on? The questions are endless. And these questions are not a let-suppose parlor game. They are REAL problems which you and the rest of your world are facing NOW, whether you like it or not. While you complain of boredom, your world is exploding like a Roman candle!

HOW MUCH LONGER CAN YOU KEEP YOUR EYES CLOSED TO THE FIREWORKS?

Two cups flour.
Four teaspoons baking powder.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-third cup sugar.
Four tablespoons fat.
One egg.
One-half cup chopped dates.
One cup milk.

Mix flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Cut in fat. Mix with knife, slowly add rest of ingredients. Pour into greased shallow pan. Spread with topping of one-half cup dark brown sugar, two tablespoons butter, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth cup chopped nuts.

Mix ingredients and spread on top soft dough. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven. Serve warm or cold.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

RAYMOND FLAHERTY

When You Can Immediately Decide to Slam.

To invite a slam with a void holding in spades, I would require such a hand as Assuming that the opener does not hold three aces, there are three possibilities: One no trump, three diamonds, three no trumps, four clubs, four no trumps (or five in diamonds or clubs), five spades.

Now the opening bidder, holding five no trumps, an undesirable contract with this type of holding. You would wisely take it to six clubs, requiring him to pass or bid six diamonds. If he passes, you can win the game.

Stick to old boldly for the slam because you are almost certain to make it. Do not worry because you cannot stop short of it except by timidly and quite unsoundly refraining from bidding the full extent of your strength. If your partner has no more than

With Shaded Values, Delay the Jump Bid.

Let us make your hand slightly weaker in primary values:

Now, to make a slam, you would not only have to win the club finesse, but also to trap the ace of spades so as to get rid of one of your losing hearts. For the slam you need only guess or deduce the position of the club queen to make the slam, in spite of the duplication in spades.

You can be sure that a fine player will never lead away from K J x of hearts and give the game to you in that manner. An extra half primary trick in the responding hand would make the situation reasonably safe for an ultimate slam contract; so make a takeout of only two diamonds with the last trump above, but later bid beyond three no trumps. Thus you will be able to sign off at five in the preferred minor suit should your partner respond with minimum on every round, not holding four primary tricks or three and a half primary plus substantial fillers.

I am devoting so much space to the bidding of big hands because every contract player who misleads the big hands that come his way will be a loser, in the long run, against players who bid them better.

Tomorrow—Slam Trys After a No Trump Bid.

Kitchen Curtains

When making kitchen curtains make a good-sized hem, about three inches, at both the top and bottom. They always shrink and this will take care of that at the same time the even hem permit reversing the curtains and causing general wear on both ends.

Shoes or boots that have become hardened from a bad wetting will soften if rubbed with a rag wet with kerosene.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest, but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for a personal reply.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

AM a man 24 years old, and dated with life. I have been in love and found it to be a very pleasant illusion. I have my own stock market crash, and don't care enough for it to start again. I am in perfect health and have won high honors in athletic competition. I thought once I would find escape from myself in traveling, but this has proven completely futile, also.

During my life I have read hundreds of books, mostly in abstracts, in an effort to find the meaning of existence, besides practical, but a logical answer I have never found. I refuse to become a part of the crowd, and I will not lower my ideals. Call my attitude morbid, if you like, but I am a seeker of the profound truth and I will not be content with anything but the most complete explanation of life.

For religion of any sort, I am uninterested. I believe it to be an opiate for those who seek a refuge from inevitable death. I have asked many brilliant men, college professors and men who have made successes of their lives, but one and all they babble . . . platitudes and more platitudes.

In a few months I am going to the "Island of the Blue Dolphins" with my household, and here I shall remain, alone with my thoughts and books.

I have the greatest respect and admiration for your advice, and if you can help me with your opinion in any way I will be indeed thankful and grateful.

Perhaps this is an unusual sort of letter to get, but I have tried to be frank. You'll be fishing, still, for the facts given above, and I hope you will forgive me, if I have taken any unusual liberties.

SCHOPENHAUER JR.

Could you stop digging for a little while? If you go out on the houseboat alone with these same thoughts for company, you probably will not enjoy your freedom very much. You'll be fishing, still, for the facts given above, and I hope you will forgive me, if I have taken any unusual liberties.

Do try to let yourself float on serenely for a while, enjoy your life, the landscape, and the rolling water. Do not keep the light in the cabin burning late. Make yourself tired and hungry with physical things all day long, go to bed when it darkens, and when it is light, just as primitive people do and bring yourself up physically to a healthy young person. All the time you are doing it, the philosophers and the philosophers will still be at work arriving at no conclusions. But you needn't mind missing some of it, because you have more years ahead than they, and may find something more satisfying and satisfactory to work at. I hope you don't mind my saying that I think you are enjoying your misery just a little and are pretty proud—shall I say—of believing nothing. But you must remember you are not so distinguished in that. A whole lot of people have done it less laboriously and less intelligently. And I believe (platitude) that nothing on earth gives more happiness as service. What you think you want now is to get away from yourself, isn't it? You don't like your state of mind. Then look more carefully at the other fellows—one whom you can serve. You can't do that, can you? Instead of a houseboat, even out there they fall in love; and it's all pretty wholesome.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

AM the misunderstood man referred to in your column and would appreciate the opportunity to voice my opinion. If your partner had been a more pleasant person, I would have been able to repay them for their sacrifices now, wouldn't you think your duty to look after it?

Anyway, I do, that is why I am considering a new arrangement for your hair. Nothing more is needed!

The dandruff is dissolved in a hurry. Scalp is soothed, cleansed, toned. It helps stop falling hair promptly, encourages it to grow longer, thicker, more abundant.

The first application of Danderine removes that oily film, gives it more lustre and sparkle than brilliancy. How soft, fluffy and easy to dress Danderine makes the hair. How wonderfully it holds the hair in place!

Dear Mrs. Carr:

HAVE a wife and two children, one 15 years old and the other 10. My wife is Irish and I happen to be a Mexican, but I am a St. Louisan and an American citizen. I have been in America 21 years, and during the World War, gave my service to the Government and never have offended the law.

A new clip a day should keep monotony away. So the newest gadgets that clip on to spring dresses are equipped with enough spare parts to last throughout the week. Rhinestones supply the glitter, while a small shaft of colored composition provides the color. These shafts are interchangeable in order that the color accent may be switched to match a dress. These are seven different colors for the seven days of the week.

Ever since prohibition it has been customary to keep the family liquor supply under lock and key. Even though this has gotten down to the last half pint, it's not a bad idea to carry out the old American custom. For this minimum stock a metal bottle top with a padlock is introduced. Two keys are included with the set.

Gingham dars to go everywhere now that cotton is King. We may see it on the golf course or at a seaside. Nothing could be suttier to trim a wool sports frock than pleated frills of gingham plaid. When the frock is gray, and the gingham is yellow, white and black, the union is something to mention.

Put this down among the fashion realities that are stranger than fiction—a coat with one lapel. The coat is of a new light-weight beige mixture and the lapel is of that elegant fur, kolinsky. We have to admit it looks very odd, but this is the season to exercise individuality in clothes.

One of those snooty, independent suits which has the air of not caring whether you like its trimming or not, combines a navy maitelasse woolen with a white novelty wool and adds a shoulder circle of silver fur. The hip-length jacket introduces the white wool for its wide lapels, pretending to button them on. There's a label inside this suit to explain the aristocratic impression.

A black shantung hat makes its bow early, showing us how fashionable this summer sports fabric can be when its worn on the head. This particular hat is a sailor of the low-crowned variety. Whatever the rough, dull fabric lacks in vivacity is completely overcome by a band of black and white, the contrast taking vertical rather than horizontal lines.

The cluster of flowers for a coat lapel couldn't be more tailored than those of dull leather. One flower is yellow, another is blue, and a third is brown. To make the symphony complete, there is one brown and one yellow leaf. The flowers do not resemble any variety we've ever seen before, so that is another attention-impelling gesture.

Anyone who wants a frock that has a touch of the bizarre without being too fantastic should consider the oriental influence. Chinese damask undersewers and wide belt, for example, do things to a navy crepe dress. There's an upstanding collar, also of this multi-colored fabric, with a long silk tassel dangling at the front. Copper buttons looking like twists of radio wire are put on the sleeves and other convenient places. A fez hat is all that this dress needs.

A dachshund, being about the longest, narrowest member of the canine kingdom, fits the space needed for a decoration on a long, narrow scarf pin. This particular dachshund happens to be silver, and the pin he ornaments happens to be wood. If your choice runs to scotties, two of them can be obtained in flattened metal on imitation jade.

A mouth-watering array of milk glass articles has caught my attention. Besides the usual lattice-work plates and dishes, there are milk glass goblets, candlesticks and even cups and saucers. In other words, everything needed for a complete table service now can be had in this voguish but old-fashioned ware.

Dear Mrs. Post:

Wish you please give us your opinion of using strong perfumes. Personally, I consider them in bad taste. It makes me positively sick to sit in the same room with a person who continues to flaunt a handkerchief reeking with a heavy scent—no matter what its price.

Answer: I can, of course, remember when orris, or else part violet or belladonna scents (invariably mixed with orris) were the only scents the ladies of quality ever used. All the strong odors such as musk and chypre were absolutely taboo. In that day ladies (in America) did not smoke cigarettes, either. Gradually we have had to grow used to perfumes and tobacco smoke, or else stay at home. Very strong scents should certainly be left off on railroad trains, and when going to see sick people. But it seems to me that those who like to go about will have to acquire immunity. In time (if you persist in going in public places) you can! You might, in fact, even become a perfume addict! I am free to admit that there are one or two that I think delicious, but I do agree that over-strong ones are bad. Of course, the real advantage of liking your own perfume is that you can smell it instead of one that is unpleasant. For this it is, however, necessary to choose at least two varieties, since one becomes in a short while no longer apparent—the reason why the people you speak of use so much. If they would alternate one with another, our nostrils would never be assailed as they are.

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I want to join a neighboring golf club, but as we do not know any of the members well enough to ask them to propose our name, we don't know how to proceed. Can you tell us?

Answer: I wish I knew how to advise you. The real question is how to meet the necessary number of members and how to make them like you enough to want to put you up for membership! Or it is possible that the club you have in mind is open to everyone who lives in the neighborhood. Can't you find this out? If there is no other way of finding out, you might write to the secretary of the club and ask whether there is any way strangers may be given the privilege of playing on the course.

"No wonder this method is so popular with girls I know; it is so simple and does such amazing things!"

This is the kind of compliments New York girls are paying this method so many are using to make hair soft, vigorous, lovely.

The cost is trifling. It takes almost no time. A few dashes of Danderine on your brush whenever you arrange your hair. Nothing more is needed!

IF YOU ASK
MY OPINION
By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr:
AM a man 24 years old, and stated with life. I have been in love and found it to be but a mere illusion. I have by my own efforts accumulated considerable wealth only to see it swept away by a stock market crash, and I don't care enough for it to start over again. I am in perfect health and have won high honors in athletic competition. I thought once I might find escape from myself in traveling, but this has proven completely futile, also.
During my life I have read hundreds of books, mostly in abstract philosophy in an effort to find the meaning of existence, besides practical, but a logical answer I have never found. I refuse to become a mere clock or automaton, and I will lower my ideals. Call my attitude morbid, if you like, but I am a seeker of the profound truth and I will not be content with any such evasive explanations of life.
As for religion of any sort, I am uninterested. I believe it to be an opiate for those who seek a refuge from inevitableness of death. I have asked many brilliant men, college professors and men who have made successes of their lives, and all they babble . . . platitudes and more platitudes.
In a few months I am going to the desolate island in the Mississippi with my houseboat, and there I shall remain, alone with my thoughts and books.
I have the greatest respect and admiration for your advice, and it can help me with your opinion in any way I will be indeed thankful and grateful.
Perhaps this is an unusual sort of letter to get, but I have tried to be frank and honest in my presentation of the facts given above, and I hope you will forgive me, if I have taken any unusual liberties.
SCHOENHAUER JR.

Would you stop digging for a little while? If you go out on the road about alone with your houseboat for company, you probably will not enjoy your freedom very much. You'll be fishing, still, for the unfathomable and wondering why the world is what it is. Do try to let yourself float on serenely for a while, enjoy with the superficial pleasures of your senses, in the landscape, and the things around you. Do not keep the light in the cabin burning late. Make yourself tired and hungry with physical things all day long, go to bed and get up when it is light, just as primitive people do and bring yourself physically to a healthy young person. All the time you are doing it, the passions and the philosophy will be at work arriving at no conclusions. But you needn't mind losing some of it, because you are more years ahead than they, and you may find something more satisfying and satisfactory to work at. I hope you don't mind my saying that I think you are enjoying your misery just a little and are proud—shall I say—of being nothing. But you must remember you are not so distinguished in that. A whole lot of people have less laboriously and more intelligently. And I believe (glattitude) that nothing on earth gives such happiness as service. What I think you want now is to get away from yourself, isn't it? You don't like your state of mind. Then look more carefully at the other fellow—one whom you can serve. You said you cannot try a ranch life, but you can't try a ranch life if you fall in love; and it's all pretty wholesome.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
AM the misunderstood man referred to in your column and would appreciate the opportunity to give my opinion. Your parting had been in poor circumstances from your birth and you were able to repay them for their services now, wouldn't you think your duty to look after them? Well, anyway, I do, that is why I considered cold and hard-hearted to go this girl. I have a great affection for her, but I can't make those who have struggled to see me get my start in life. This is the trouble with girls of today—they have little thought of past or future. All they seem to be concerned in is the present.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
HAVE a wife and two children, one 15 years old and the other 13. My wife is Irish and I am a native-born American citizen. I have been in America 21 years and during the World War, gave service to the Government and have been in the army. I have been refused three times to be a citizen because my nationality seems to be the trouble. If I leave my family, would they be supported? I have no money, but I am no good to them. The neighbors give us some help.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot take office on matters of a legal or medical nature. Please do not care to have your letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for a personal reply.

EXTREMES in the New STYLES for SPRING Wear
Sketches Made From Models in the St. Louis Stores

BY SYLVIA STILES.

ARE YOU the clinging vine type? Do you appear at your best when doted up in fluffy ruffles and plenty of frills so that the world shows a protective interest in you?
Or do you prefer mannish clothes, feeling at home in severe tailors, fedora hats and low-heeled walking shoes, and abhorring the idea of getting dressed up in the furbelows that usually accompany femininity? Do not keep the thought of your type, this is the season to dress to suit your own inclinations. Not for a long time has Dame Fashion given women such an opportunity to demonstrate their individuality. Whatever they like, they can have it. If they want those clinging-vine clothes, they can have whole closets full of them, ranging from the things to wear for lounging at home to the filmy, billowing chiffons for evening. If they prefer the mannish attire they can have this, too, even going so far as to dress in trousers throughout the twenty-four hours of the day. Extremes are in fashion, but that doesn't mean that all of us must endorse extremes in order to be smartly clad. The extremists are having their day, but the conservatives are having theirs, too. In short, there never was a better time to browse around in the shops, studying the different classifications of clothes represented, and choosing the ones that appeal. Personality is the order of the season. Expressing one's own is the fun of buying new clothes.

The styles sketched today are intended for the extremists. Some may think that the elaborateness of the feminine fashions presented is a little too pronounced. Others may decide that the mannish clothes for spring go a little too far in their effort to copy what husbands or brothers wear. But they illustrate the versatility of the collections of this season, and show us how a positive personality can find its expression.
Since suits give every indication of being the street uniform for spring, let's consider how far in either direction they are going. The mannish suit with trousers needs little comment, because it has received so much already. St. Louis stores, so you may be interested in knowing, bought it in limited quantity, thinking only a few might like to be different. Much to their surprise, the first arrivals sold out in a hurry and reorders were necessary. The suit which seems to sell best has a skirt as well as trousers.

The very dressy type of suit is designed for style followers who feel that the more fur a coat or jacket has, the more alluring it will be. This suit isn't the least bit modest about its decorations. Wide bands of gray fox are swirled around its shoulders and its sleeves. A scarf tie of the same lovely gray crepe wool of which the suit is made, adds another softening influence at the neck. The skirt is not without its festive airs, although so many of this season's skirts are plain. Sunburst tucks start high in the front and assist this skirt in having a novel waistline. Hats and shoes as well as blouses to be worn with these trimmed suits have an excellent opportunity to carry on the theme of feminine charm.

The two extremes for lounging wear are shown in the center sketches. Here we have the tailored girl in her mannish robe of that once-exclusive masculine cotton fabric—seersucker. St. Louis stores not only are featuring robes of this material, but also pajamas. Those who scorn frills but don't like seersucker will find light weight robes of flannel, the collars notched, their pockets patched, and their fronts double-breasted. Femininity reaches its zenith in the dainty lounging robe of lace over salmon pink silk crepe. This is one of those exquisite creations which makes every luxury-loving woman want to increase her leisure so that she can spend at least half of each day in her boudoir. The skirt has a rippling flounce applied to the straight upper section. The sash tying far at the side is of moire ribbon to match the slip.

The two evening costumes which are sketched do not give you the exact picture of the after-dark extremes. The filmy chiffon is typical of the fluffiest ruffles and, and we can't help hoping that the tailored model is typical of the fashions the Amazon-inclined will wear. But there are more radical interpretations of the new craze for things masculine, including a regulation tuxedo suit with trousers. It isn't sketched because we believe with Aunt Bella that "trousers is all right for women, dearie, but women ain't all right for trousers." The frothy model of chiffon is in that new patriotic shade of Eleanor blue, and you couldn't find a more ladylike creation. A circular flounce demonstrates the new trend of skirt fullness, while the cascades of ruffles at the back prove that there is a new silhouette for evening. More ruffles adorn the cape, which not only dips down gracefully in the back, but adds a miniature sailor collar.

Necktie silk influences the tailored evening gown at extreme to look quite severe. The background is black and the tiny moire name after-dark fabrics. The bodice has a moderately low décolletage and a tailored bow in the front, while the skirt is gored without providing much extra fullness. The jacket has its shoulders padded to prove that its wearer belongs to the independents.

The Band Concert.
"NOW," said Willy Nilly, "it's our turn to play our cornet. You, Top o' the mill, play your cornet. You, Ducks, play the reed whistles, and you, Rip, beat the drum with your tail!"
They practiced in the old house until it was dark and time for the lights to be turned on for their supper.

Now and again Willy Nilly continued to hear strange sounds, and, while he was not nervous, he did feel a bit uncomfortable. During supper he talked a great deal so the others would not hear, but once there came a sound from the stairway and Mrs. Quacko Duck quacked:
"I heard a ghost just then on the stairs!"
And Willy Nilly shouted:
"Come out of your hiding places, Ghosts!"
But now they were giving their Puddle Muddle band concert and all was very quiet except for the music. Suddenly Rip barked:
"I heard a cry—a little muffled cry!"
Now, now, there, there," said Willy Nilly. "It's not going to do us any good to get excited."
"If there are any ghosts in the world—and I don't believe that there are—they just frighten people. Come, we'll go on with our concert."

They continued, playing, but while their music was much improved because of their after-dinner practice they were all nervous, for they could see that Willy Nilly had come closer to admitting there were ghosts than ever he had before.
All of a sudden many light footsteps could be heard tripping down the stairs. The Puddle Muddle Band stopped playing in the middle of the waltz.

Confidential Talks With Mothers and Fathers.

Frightening Others
ONE of the unpleasant tricks which children often practice is that of frightening one another. Leaping out of dark corners with blood-curdling screams, dressing up in sheets and masks and playing ghosts, telling baby brother that the bogie man is after him—such odd ideas of fun are bound to be familiar to every mother.

Why do children do this sort of thing? Is it sheer cruelty toward the younger or timid child? Sometimes it is perhaps just that, especially where, motives of jealousy enter into the picture.
Often, however, the child's attempt to frighten others is to be understood as an expression of his wish to conquer his own fears.
Because he himself is afraid of the dark, of sudden loud noises, of bogie men, wild animals and fire he conjures up these things in so effort to familiarize himself with them, to live through them from the angle of the agent rather than the victim.
Thus by identifying himself with these terrifying visions and by frightening others with them he triumphs over his own fears, and experiences extreme pleasure in the process.
Since this is so, probably the best way to stop such behavior is to give the child insight into his motives.
It will be necessary, of course, patiently to point out to him again and again the meaning of his actions. Only when he has thoroughly assimilated the new self-knowledge will his conduct be affected by it.
Meanwhile, he should be encouraged to talk freely of his fears, for merely understanding himself is a loved and trusted individual tends to diminish them.

BEHIND THE SCREENS
By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 1.
LOOK over the livestock payroll for a movie and you get the idea that here is one place where farming should be profitable.
Barnyard sets are needed in many pictures during a year, and one industry in which movie executives seldom shine is the rural specialty. Besides, most studios have no room to care for wandering cows, pigs or ducks as permanent guests.
So these transient "stars" have to be rented, and California ranches which specialize in movies do business as nice little businesses.
Joe McDonald, in charge of livestock rentals at one studio, estimates his plant spends about $25,000 annually for animals and fowl.

FOR the furred or feathered actors who appear in the barnyard scenes of "Pilgrimage"—the film that brings Henrietta Crosman back to the screen—the cost sheet reveals 18 chickens at 25 cents each per day; six geese and eight rabbits at 50 cents each; two milk cows, camera-trained, $5 each; a mother hen and 12 chicks, $4.45; a mutt dog and an alley cat at $1.50 each. Figure it up yourself—or take my word for it, it's $28.85, a tidy sum for anybody's day.
Notable among the rental farms, says McDonald, is that of Lionel Comport and his three sons at Buena Vista, a few miles from Hollywood. The Comport ranch is a strange hostelry, with about 12,000 guests, all animals and birds. Swayback horses, fresh mules, goats, sheep, bears, kinkajous, pigs, chipmunks—these are just a few of the animals. The birds include varieties from parrots, sea gulls, macaws, and eagles to low birds and chickens.

THE South American kinkajou is rated in studio animal-wise circles as a temperamental actor of the most obstinate sort. He is vicious when awakened, although easily handled once fully aroused. That's the difficulty—it has a passion for sleep, and to keep it awake requires the constant attention of a keeper. The kinkajou alone rents for $12.50 a day—keeper extra.

Cream of Pea Soup
Two cups peas.
Three cups water.
One-half cup chopped celery.
Three tablespoons chopped onions.
Three tablespoons chopped parsley.
One teaspoon salt.
Mix ingredients. Cover and cook slowly 40 minutes. Press through strainer and add to sauce made with three tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour, four cups milk, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika.
Melt butter and add flour. Blend well and add milk; cook until mixture thickens a little. Add strained mixture and cook two minutes.
Dried or fresh peas may be used in this soup. Dried peas require several hours of soaking.
Cold sliced cereal rolled in flour, dipped in beaten egg and then in breadcrumbs and fried in bacon fat makes a delicious breakfast dish.

From the Wardrobe of a Motion-Picture Star

CHAPTER TEN.

AND who might Miss Hagerty be? Paul puzzled over the name brought to him a few minutes later by his secretary. "She said you'd know her," Miss Milton said indignantly. "I thought she was lying."

"Well, what is she like and what does she want?"

"Well, she's about the biggest woman I ever saw," replied his secretary. "And I know her on the weirdest hat in the world. She said her business was personal and—here Miss Milton's tone became self-conscious—"had something to do with a young lady."

"I shouldn't miss seeing the weirdest hat in the world," Paul decided. "Have her come in for five minutes."

"Mrs. Em!" he exclaimed a few minutes later, when his visitor was ushered in. "Why on earth didn't you say it was you?"

"I did," Em was wearing finery which had obviously served her on great occasions for years. The hat which had so impressed Miss Milton was a flat affair which hung precariously from Em's topknot and was skewered there by that seldom seen object, a hat pin. Plumes had been in and out of fashion many times since the hat was first concocted, and age had not dealt gently with the one which dangled over her ear.

She had evidently failed to follow Mr. Paul's suggestions and buy a new dress; at least she was not wearing it, and from beneath the cracked folds of an ancient taffeta Em's great man's shoes peered out.

But Mr. Paul did not seem to see any of the incongruities of her costume. He appeared only glad to see her, and he made her at home with the same courtesy—more, perhaps—than he showed to any visitor.

"But see here, I've been calling you 'Mrs. all the time,' Paul apologized. "Where did I get that idea?"

"It was never my fault that it's 'Miss' instead of 'Mrs.," returned Em serenely. "But some men are that stupid, they don't know a prize when they see one."

"What I came to see you about, Mr. Paul—and my faith, it's a job to get a word with you in the day-time—was to find out if you still want to find the young lady you were speaking of."

"Indeed I do, Miss—say, do you mind if I go on calling you 'Mrs.?' "It's music to my ears," consented Em graciously.

"Thank you, Mrs. Em. Have you seen her?"

"I'm not sure." Here Em stepped out upon the quicksand of her story was pure cock and bull and would depend for its credibility entirely upon Paul's desire to believe. "But I think I have."

Gray is one of the predominant shades in the personal wardrobe of NORMA SHEARER, lovely picture star. An afternoon model coat shows casual gray combined with Persian lamb, the fur forming the bolero top, the puff sleeves and the accompanying huge muff. The hat corresponds by having a square cut crown. A darker tone of gray is used for the slip-on suede gloves.

MISS SHEARER gives a demure, ingly feminine appearance in her black wool street suit from her personal wardrobe. A long jacket is belted and pocketed in youth-snipped-in waistline and puffed short full style and set off by blond fox fur that she wears around the shoulders and arms. A smarty flowers of white gardenias gives this note, bereft with typical "Kiki" feathers carries out as does the "pumpkin" muff of white the same green tone and is of a hand-knit weave.

In this photograph MISS SHEARER wears as glamorous in real life. A formal evening ensemble that justifies the word "magnificent" is included in the new wardrobe of the lovely Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star. Of cream broadcloth, the gown shows clinging-line simplicity angles, harmonized with this modern feeling of a period costume.

Considered to be one of the best dressed women on the screen, MISS SHEARER is fully as glamorous in real life. A formal evening ensemble that justifies the word "magnificent" is included in the new wardrobe of the lovely Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star. Of cream broadcloth, the gown shows clinging-line simplicity angles, harmonized with this modern feeling of a period costume.

An afternoon ensemble brings back memories of the costumes of long ago. Carried out in crinkly crepe in a lovely chateau shade, the quaint jacket shows bands of fur over the tops of the puffed sleeves, edging of the neckline and jacket opening. A brown "baghera" clark hat, tipped at the egret and newest of angles, harmonized with this modern feeling of a period costume.

"WHERE? Is she somewhere about? Can I see her?" His excitement and pleasure were proof enough of where his heart lay.

"Now calm yourself, Mr. Paul," urged Em. "I might be all wrong. Don't get your expectations all roused up for nothing. But there was a young lady around asking about a purse she had lost. I wasn't suspicious then, but later I got to thinking and wondering could it be the same."

"What did she look like?" demanded Paul. "Was she dark with long eyelashes?"

"She was dark all right, and—"

"Yes, yes!" urged Paul. "Pretty, very pretty?"

"Um-m, I suppose there's folks would call her pretty," Em replied wickedly. "I like 'em a little bigger myself with more meat on their bones. But sweet-like she was, with a nice refined way about her. I will say that to be sure that in this pleasant tableau there could be no hint of disaster and then, with a sigh, started for the nearest street where there was work to be done."

Now that she had played so well the part of Cupid, tears gathered in her eyes. Em was no fool. Though the fact had never been mentioned between body and her aunts, the two older women understood well enough that a happy consummation of the affair with Paul Grafton would mean for them to lose their bosom, but not once did it occur to Em to weaken.

Jody shouldn't have the handicap in her new life of being a scrub-woman's foster daughter! Mr. Paul must never know of the connection between the girl he loved and the big woman with whom he joked in his sixtieth floor office.

Soon now, if all went well with Jody and Paul, Hannah and Em would have to pass from Jody's life and watch her happiness from a distance great enough so that they would never be a danger to her. It would be like taking the heart from their bosoms. But not once did it occur to Em to weaken.

Jody had taken off her hat and was looking idly at the water when an object slid over the back of the bench and landed by her hand. She recognized the object and looked up to speak to Aunt Em, beholding instead the grinning face of Paul Grafton.

"You!" she cried, unable to believe. "But—how did you get here?"

"Wouldn't you like to know?" Paul teased.

What's Going On in the St. Louis Movie Theaters

Conducted by Nie

TODAY brings another road show special to the Missouri Theater when the lovely German picture, "Maedchen in Uniform," will be the attraction and for the first time in the United States at popular prices. The picture is an unusual and different romance, depicting the life in a girls' boarding school, showing their loves and reactions to harsh discipline. A cast composed entirely of girls includes two new Nordic beauties, who are reported as being on their way to stardom. Hertha Thiele and the equally charming Dorothea Wieck. On this same program the Missouri offers another picture, "The King's Vacation," which one aimed to produce laughs. "The King's Vacation" is the title, and it stars broad-grinning Jack Oakie. Others in the cast include Vivienne Osborne and George E. Stone.

CHESTER MORRIS and Genevieve Tobin will be co-featured in a comedy romance, "The Infernal Machine," at the Fox Theater, starting tomorrow. The story centers around a stowaway in a big ocean liner. Everything seems to be going along excellently, when a radiogram is received that an infernal machine has been planted aboard the ship, and the passengers are doomed to destruction. A panic follows, during which Morris, the stowaway, takes shrewd advantage to win the girl of his choice. An unusual twist to the story brings a melodramatic denouement with enough laughs to make this picture a comedy. On the stage, Fanchon and Marco will present the Dave Apollon and his revue, "Surprise of 1934."

JIMMY "SCHNOZZLE" DURANTE and Buster Keaton those riotous comedy stars of "Speak Easily," make their latest so-far appearance in "What's So Bad?" the screen attraction at Loew's tomorrow. The picture, a satire on the current beer controversy, is an adaptation of a story written expressly for Keaton and Durante by Robert Hopkins. Alternating between excitement and comedy, the picture centers around the problem of legalized beer. Buster is a taxidermist and "Schnozle" the town barber. When the repeal question is brought out in a political battle, the two comedians put their life savings into a brewery. They are presently released by the police, but are released when it is discovered that the beer they thought they were making is little less than dishwater. The romantic interest in "What's So Bad?" is provided when Keaton falls in love with the sweetheart of a gang leader. The feminine lead is taken by Phyllis Barry.

IN HIS recent screen characterizations, George Arliss has been a captain of industry, a world famous banker, a gifted musician, a secretary of the treasury, an East Indian potentate and a prime minister. His greatest success has been as the prime minister. Now he has moved up a peg in the cinematic scale. He is a king in his latest picture, "The King's Vacation," which comes to the Ambassador tomorrow. It is around his giving up of his kingly prerogatives that the story is written in a humorous vein by Ernest Pascal, with the comedy spirit of a lumper. Among the players in support of Arliss are Dick Powell, Patricia Ellis, Dudley Digges, O. P. Heggie, Marjorie Gatenon and Florence Arliss.

"CAVALCADE" that fine picture of English life, will come to an end of its three weeks' stay at the Grand Central on Saturday night. The theater will remain dark until the following Thursday or Friday when it will be open at the regular cinema house scale with a succession of Warner pictures.

This BEAUTY EXPERT Says:

I won't be long now before the Easter parade swings into being, and no doubt you have already begun thinking about your spring wardrobe. It is well to give it some real thought in advance and avoid a haphazard buying. The woman who has two or three complete costumes, complete with accessories to suit different occasions is likely to have the reputation of being better dressed than the woman with a closet full of clothes, many of them sad skeletons that point to senseless shopping, colors that clash or cut, and dresses that just aren't friendly.

You may be interested in knowing how the screen stars shop. And it would surprise you to know how systematic and careful they are, in spite of ample means to indulge in occasional recklessness and headstrong shopping.

Claudette Colbert is very systematic. She has two pet, exclusive shops and two big department stores, and it is she cannot discover the required garment in her four choices, gives up the search or changes her mind. She is never tempted by fancy frocks and the saleswoman knowing her taste tries to relieve the monotony.

First she selects her costume and then requests a sample of the material and fortified with this wisp of yardage goes searching for hat, shoes, gloves and handbag. It's these important notes that complete the costume that form the backbone of perfection of Miss Colbert when she emerges in public.

Sylvia Sydney shops in huge department stores. She will wait until only fits are a dire necessity and then leap in with both feet. Then she drives off from shop to shop. She likes trying new places. She makes a list of the needed clothes in advance, such as: "Tailored suit, hat, shoes and blouse to match; black crepe dinner gown, coat to match; green sports suit, angora if possible. Miss Sidney usually devotes one day to the costume and another day for hats and accessories."

Carole Lombard is one star who loves to shop. She never buys more than one outfit at a time, believing that each ensemble requires its

GARDNER Pure Star

Evening ensemble brings back memories of long ago. Carried out in a lovely chateau shade, the skirt shows bands of fur over the top of the sleeves, edging of the neckline and opening. A brown "baguette" tipped at the geyest and newest of fashions with this modern feeling of costume.

Candied Sweet Potatoes
Six peeled sweet potatoes.
Four tablespoons fat.
Two-thirds cup dark brown sugar.
One-third teaspoon cinnamon.
Two-thirds cup water.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Heat fat in baking pan. Add rest of ingredients and bake 50 minutes in moderate oven. Turn potatoes several times during baking.

New Discovery Changes Gray Hair to Natural Color

Quick—Safe—Certain
Costs Only 15c

Here is startling news for women who have watched with growing anxiety the gradual graying of their hair.
RIT chemists—after thousands of tests—have discovered the amazing fact that Instant RIT dyes gray hair perfectly. It is absolutely harmless —and it costs only 15 cents!

Now with either Golden Brown or Dark Brown Instant RIT you can change gray hair to a beautiful, glossy natural shade—bring back the softness and sheen of youth. RIT alone gives perfect results. Does not streak, dry the hair, or give that dyed look.
Harmless as water, proved so by seven years' testing.

Don't let gray hair mar your happiness.
Go to your nearest dealer. Ask for regular Instant RIT, Golden Brown or Dark Brown.
Simple directions are in every package.

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatica pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengal (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain.
Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for Baume Bengal is a powerful enough to "dead" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

But beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengay by name (called "Ben-Gay" in English). There are many analgesic salms, mostly cheap imitations of Baume Bengay made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are ineffectual. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

IN UNION THERE IS STRENGTH

In response to the demands of countless thousands, including grocers, tailors, doctors, dentists and one mortgage holder, we have decided to organize a Fredric March and/or Joan Crawford and/or Tom Mix and/or Clark Gable and/or Mae West Club for the convenience of movie fans. The moment you quietly slip $1.50 in air mail stamps under our door we will immediately enroll you in any or all of our exclusive clubs. Membership entitles you to attend all pictures of the star to whose club you belong. For a small additional fee, our rules and regulations give you the right to address any number of fan letters to your club star. Under by-law H.R.Q. 876657, you are privileged to talk back to us; while H.R.X. 56453 gives you the right to stay home with a good book. Think it oah, folks. Think it oah.

According to a professor of economics, "It is seldom that women try seriously to succeed." Maybe so. But judging from the divorce statistics, they frequently succeed in succeeding each other.

25 STATES ACT TO CHECK
WITHDRAWALS FROM BANKS

Wisconsin, Texas, Washington, Oregon, Georgia and Arizona Among Latest to Suspend or Limit Operations.

10 MORE TAKE STEP IN LAST TWO DAYS

Suspension Movement Developed From Michigan Situation—Gov. Horner Decides Against Illinois Moratorium.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 3.—Twenty-five states have now authorized or ordered banks to suspend business for stated periods or have passed laws permitting banks to restrict withdrawals. Action ranged from holidays, mandatory or optional, to legislation giving banks power to limit withdrawals.
Holidays of varying duration were declared yesterday or early today in 10 states—Texas, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Arizona, Nevada, Utah, New Mexico, Georgia and Wisconsin.
Here and in New York, as well as in other sections, banking business went on untroubled by difficulties elsewhere. In many of the states where holidays were declared or restrictive action taken, officials said their banks were sound, but "business" was suspended against withdrawals and repercussions from other sections.
No Illinois Moratorium.
Gov. Henry Horner issued a statement early this morning saying it was his opinion that no bank holiday or moratorium should be declared in Illinois.
The statement was issued after a conference of Chicago, Cook County and other Illinois bankers. It was indicated there was confidence that a few more days would see the end of uneasiness in other sections of the country.
Meanwhile, bankers in Du Page County, which adjoins Cook County on the west, decided to restrict withdrawals to 5 per cent.
Early today Lieutenant-Governor Thomas J. O'Malley of Wisconsin proclaimed a two weeks' banking moratorium. A few hours before, Gov. Wood of Utah, after receiving authority from the Legislature, proclaimed a four-day legal holiday. Four-day bank holiday also was declared early today by Gov. Seligman of New Mexico.
Georgia Latest to Join.
A holiday in Georgia from 11 a. m. today continuing through March 6, effective as to all banks in the State, was declared today by Gov. Talmadge. The proclamation said that the Governor had been advised by the State Superintendent of Banks that banks in Georgia were in good condition and that the present action was brought about because of the demand from other states in which banking holidays have been declared.
In Texas, Gov. Ferguson proclaimed a five-day financial moratorium, ordering all banks to close until March 8. Gov. Martin of Washington declared a three-day holiday. Fifteen days is the duration of the holiday proclaimed to start in Idaho today. Oregon and Arizona proclaimed holidays of three days, while Gov. Balzar gave Nevada banks a "breathing spell" of four days.
Michigan Started Move.
There was a growing belief that the situation in Michigan, which saw the start of the restrictive movement Feb. 14, would reach a solution in the opening of the closed banks next week. Many banks were operating under a 5 per cent withdrawal restriction.
In California a three-day holiday proclamation had tied up the major part of deposits but a few banks stayed open. Oklahoma framed legislation to put finances on an even keel, while the public took a three-day holiday good-naturedly. Half a dozen banks ignored the holiday proclamation.
About 500 of Ohio's 800 banks were limiting withdrawals, while in Kentucky a voluntary bank holiday was extended to March 11. In Kentucky most banks conducted business on a 5 per cent withdrawal basis but others, chiefly in the western part of the State, continued business without restrictions.
In New Jersey only a few banks availed themselves of newly granted permission to pay depositors in installments, and in Tennessee the banks which closed under a six-day holiday proclamation were few.
Most of Alabama's banks were
